COLUMBIA PACT CLOSE DESPITE SMOKESCREEN

Both Governments Can Claim Victory

By TERRY HAMMOND

Justice Minister Davie Fulton has set the stage for a B.C.-Ottawa Columbia River pact which could bring about an early start on the $458,000,000 project.

Speech Angers Udall

WASHINGTON (CP)—U.S. Interior Secretary Stewart Udall was reported yesterday to be infuriated by a blunt attack launched Tuesday by Canadian Justice Minister Davie Fulton in a Columbia River power speech.

Udall conferred yesterday with U.S. Ambassador to Canada Livingston Merchant who, it was indicated, may be trying to head off a Canada-U.S. storm on the Columbia controversy.

'DRIVE ABETTED'
Mr. Fulton inferred in his speech that Udall was abetting a B.C. propaganda drive to obtain Ottawa approval for sale of Columbia power to the U.S. It appeared likely Ambassador Merchant may have advised Udall against any sharp retort to Fulton and there was some indication Merchant, who later returned to Ottawa, may explore the possibility of bringing Udall and Fulton together.

Misunderstanding By Fulton Charged

By PETER BEUTON

Federal Justice Minister Davie Fulton has demonstrated a complete lack of understanding of Columbia River development problems, B.C. Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston charged yesterday.

"It is a tragedy for the Canadian policy to be enacted on a false misunderstanding," said Mr. Williston, commenting on a speech by Mr. Fulton at Prince George Tuesday.

'NOT RECOGNIZED'
The provincial minister said Mr. Fulton's attack on B.C.'s plan to sell Columbia power in the U.S. showed no recognition of the practical difficulties of carrying out the terms of the treaty.

There was no market in the U.S. for short-term "dump" power but there was a profitable, long-range market which would allow the financing of the entire project, said Mr. Williston.

Mr. Fulton knew full well that the sale of surplus downstream benefits was provided

Through the smoke and fire of Mr. Fulton's Tuesday night Prince George policy speech, a chink of light through which is glimpsed an early settlement of the burning federal-provincial controversy over the fate of B.C.'s downstream benefits.

VICTORIES CLAIMED
Likelihood that settlement will be reached along a course left open by the justice minister is considered greatly enhanced by the fact that both the federal and provincial governments could claim major victories for their points of view.

DOOR CLOSED
Close study of the prepared text of Mr. Fulton's stormy Tuesday speech discloses that he specifically closed the door against what he repeatedly referred to as "long-term" sale of downstream benefits to the U.S. At one point in his speech he inferred that by long-term he means 30 to 60 years.

STORY DENIED
This was indicated earlier Tuesday in a bylined Canadian Press dispatch which followed an interview with Mr. Fulton aboard a Prince George-bound airliner.

The story, which Mr. Fulton later denied categorically, said the federal government might allow sale of some B.C. Columbia power for up to 20 years.

'NOT WAVING'
Yesterday, the Colonist learned that during Mr. Fulton's interview with the Canadian Press reporter he had been under the impression his remarks were "off the record."

Canadian Press, faced with Mr. Fulton's denial, declined to withdraw the story.

It was believed here yesterday that the denial was issued in order to dispel the impression that the federal government is wavering on its policy.

VALERIAN ZORIN

Angry Zorin Marches From Dinner

NEW YORK (UPI)—Valerian Zorin, Soviet ambassador to the United Nations, last night stalked from a dinner honoring U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, angered over remarks made in a speech by Vice-President Lyndon Johnson.

Zorin later told a reporter: "If the host does not respect the guest, then the guest cannot respect such a host."

Johnson was in the midst of a speech in which he took the Communists to task, pointing out that American successes around the world have far surpassed those of the Communists.

Johnson had been speaking about five minutes and had reached a point where he described the successes of democracy in Japan, Greece and Turkey.

Bolt of Lightning Hurls Man 30 Feet

TOFINO—A 58-year-old mechanic was hurled 30 feet by a lightning bolt last night as one of the worst storms in recent years lashed the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Oliver Sherdal of Tofino was left dazed and shaken after lightning knocked a transformer off a power pole 100 yards away and dashed him to the ground a split second later.

The toll of storm damage in the Tofino-Ucluelet area was still mounting at press time today.

'Brand Cigaretts as Menace'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Four doctors, all former smokers, said here public agencies should declare cigarettes a health menace.

The doctors appeared before a District of Columbia Medical Society meeting. They agreed there was no longer any room for doubt about statistical and clinical findings linking cigaret smoking with lung cancer and certain forms of circulatory disease.

Dr. Michael Shimkin, cancer specialist of the National Institutes of Health, said:

"We're speaking of spinach, the selling of spinach would now be a capital offence."

Shimkin said cigarettes should be regarded as a major "environmental poison," adding: "Cigaret advertising equates smoking cigarettes with bravery, sexual virility and social status, and in view of this campaign it is little wonder that so many youngsters smoke. We must change this picture. We have an obligation to our children."

Diefenbaker Claims Credit For Common Market Pledge

Key Paragraph Cited

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker last night defined the Conservative government's relations with the United Kingdom.

"The Conservative party," he said, "stands for co-operation with Britain without subservience."

"It stands for a strong Commonwealth in which consultation will take place on matters of Commonwealth interest, in which there will be full regard by each of the nations for the effect of its policies on the other members."

The prime minister's statement climaxed a review of the current London-Ottawa difficulties over Britain's proposal to join the European Common Market.

Diefenbaker claimed credit for the representations which he had made concerning the interests of Canada and other Commonwealth nations. He

The Colonist has obtained a copy of the now famous speech made to Common Market members by Britain's Lord Privy Seal, Edward Heath. This was the speech Canada wanted in detail and was refused. After the speech was leaked to the United States, the British government released it to all Commonwealth governments.

That 'Split' with U.K. Didn't Exist—Minister

SASKATOON (CP)—A Canada would have no right to "split" between Canada and Britain over United Kingdom membership in the European Common Market never has existed, Alvin Hamilton, federal agriculture minister, said Wednesday.

Mr. Hamilton, replying to questions following his address to students at the University of Saskatchewan, said:

"I listened to this intense little woman's story last night as she helped get the younger children ready for bed."

It was evident that I was listening to a heroine. "When they told me my husband was dead," she said, "I nearly died, too. It was the children, I think, who kept me going."

Mrs. Baker's Battle Becomes Epic

By TED FULFORD

Buried among the chronicles of human misery in the city's welfare office is a case file which begins with this entry: "Baker, Mrs. C. V. Husband collapsed and died at work. She has seven children and expects another. There is no money in the bank, no insurance and the house is not paid for. She has applied for social assistance."

The story of Mrs. Baker's battle for the survival of her family and herself, since that terrible entry was written back in 1959, is one that Victorians should know.

As she helped get the younger children ready for bed.

It was evident that I was listening to a heroine.

"When they told me my husband was dead," she said, "I nearly died, too. It was the children, I think, who kept me going."

The wound inflicted by the tragedy is still raw. When she mentions her husband, her eyes waver for an instant and she seems almost to forget what she intends to say.

Her family's war against the physical and mental erosion of want has been a minor epic in the neighborhood. Though her face shows the lines of a thousand pinched budgets, her youngsters reflect a security which any family might envy.

In some mysterious way, the little woman and her house full of bawling, happy youngsters has converted poverty into great wealth and the loss of her husband has become the catalyst drawing her family together.

As she spoke, Mrs. Baker

bounced a hefty baby on her knee. "He's a foster child, you see. His mother didn't want him and so they let me take him."

"We're good for each other, this baby and I." I asked Mrs. Baker how she finally made her peace with charity.

Follows Chimp

Marine Lt. Col. John Herschel Glenn, 40, was named yesterday as the first U.S. astronaut to be rocketed into orbit over the route blazed by the chimpanzee Enos.

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—Remaining American hopes of matching Russia by putting a man in orbit in 1961, faded yesterday when a planned triple orbital flight by a chimpanzee named Enos had to be cut short after two trips around the earth.

With his Mercury space capsule heating dangerously and beginning to roll, the chimpanzee was brought down in the Atlantic 500 miles south of Bermuda, where navy ships converged to retrieve him.

DETAILED REHEARSAL Enos' flight was planned as a full dress rehearsal for orbiting a U.S. astronaut in a few weeks. The chimpanzee, taken 18 months ago from the African jungles, was scheduled for a 4½-hour voyage through space—three trips around the globe at 17,500 miles an hour. He went straight to his work of pulling levers and was rewarded with a lunch of banana-flavored pellets by the time he crossed the Indian Ocean on his first orbit.

Plunging through space at heights of 99 to 146 miles, the capsule ran into trouble on the second orbit and federal space administration officials decided to bring it down.

SIGNALS RELAYED Signals relayed from Point Arguello, Calif., fired the rockets which caused the capsule to re-enter the atmosphere and descend on a parachute into the Atlantic.

First explanations were that there had been an abnormal temperature rise in the capsule, probably caused by trouble with an electric current inverter. There was also trouble in the attitude control system which determines the capsule's position in relation to the horizon.

DATE MENTIONED The chances of orbiting a man had been considered marginal at best during the remainder of this year, but there had been talk here of a Dec. 21 target date.

Enos relaxes before his history-making flight.

Keep Debate On Arms Open

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Canada moved yesterday to keep the question of disarmament open in the UN while the great powers bargain privately on a negotiating body.

Canadian delegate E. L. M. Burns launched the successful manoeuvre in the 103-member senior political committee.

PRIVATE TALKS Burns noted the United States and the Soviet Union are now engaged in private talks on the makeup of a disarmament negotiating body. He urged the subject be kept open pending a report from them.

This was in line with the stand taken last week by External Affairs Minister Green, who pleaded links be maintained between the UN and any negotiating body decided upon by the major powers.

Reds Questioned Over 'Cynicism' On Nuclear Ban

GENEVA (UPI)—The United States and Britain demanded yesterday that the Soviets explain point-by-point why they "cynically" reneged on commitments for international controls over a nuclear test ban.

U.S. delegation chief Arthur Dean served notice at the three-power nuclear conference that the U.S. will not permit Russia "to gain any unilateral advantage" from its breaking of the nuclear test ban moratorium.

GUARANTEES ASKED Dean, accusing Russia of a "high degree of cynicism about a test ban," said Washington will demand ironclad guarantees of effective international controls before it accepts any formal test ban agreement.

"We see no reason now to run the risks of successful cheating by accepting any nuclear test ban without adequate controls because this would only reward the Soviet Union for its past violations," the U.S. chief delegate said.

STANDS BY PLAN But veteran Soviet delegate Semyon Tsarapkin stood by the Kremlin's "new approach" plan—already rejected by the West—calling for a new, completely uncontrolled test moratorium. Tsarapkin said it provided "the sole path to a solution of the nuclear weapons testing problem."

RESPONSE AWAITED Tsarapkin refused to accept Dean's rejection of the Soviet plan as official. He told the Western allies today: "We await a response from the United States and the United Kingdom which we hope will be positive."

Bid to Topple President

Police Club Rioting Mobs

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—Roving mobs clashed repeatedly with troops and police on the second day of a general strike attempt to topple Dominican President Joaquin Balaguer's government.

Heavily-armed troops and police, backed by fire engines, poured into downtown streets in large numbers and used tear gas and billy clubs to disperse unruly crowds that forced a few stores to close their doors again after they had dared open up.

One group identifying itself as representative of the Dominican Republic's professional class delivered a letter to U.S. Consul-General John Calvin Hill and urged the U.S. to use its influence to prevent "the installation of a new military dictatorship."

New Cuban Bloodbath?

HAVANA (UPI)—President Osvaldo Dorticos warned yesterday that from now on all captured rebels and saboteurs will be shot within 48 hours.

The president's threat of a new bloodbath in Cuba echoed that voiced by Premier Fidel Castro in a 2½-hour speech broadcast by Havana radio.

The Reason Why

WHEN, SEVERAL MONTHS ago, the British government first made it known that it intended entering into negotiations with the European Common Market, Prime Minister Macmillan assured the Commonwealth nations that no firm decisions on Britain's course would be reached without prior consultations with their governments.

On receipt of this information, the senior Commonwealth nations led by Canada, proposed an immediate meeting of Commonwealth prime ministers. The suggestion was rejected by Mr. Macmillan who offered in its stead a series of unilateral discussions between his senior ministers and the various Commonwealth governments.

This plan, put into effect with varying degrees of success, carried with it his promise that Commonwealth countries would be kept "fully" informed on the negotiations "step by step."

Whether or not this promise has been kept is now in doubt. Judging from the recent disclosure of the British government's refusal to release to the Commonwealth governments the full text of its first brief to the EEC council, it would appear that it has not.

The question now arises as to the reason why Britain was reluctant to keep the Commonwealth "fully" informed as earlier pledged.

Seizing upon the controversy as something to be used to political advantage in this country, opponents of the present Ottawa government are bruited abroad the idea that it was all Canada's fault because the Diefenbaker government has had the honesty to declare openly its doubts about Britain's entry into EEC.

Therefore, the opposition pundits declare, Britain does not trust Canada any more. Such a conclusion is absurd. No matter how vital it may be for Britain to enter into closer amalgamation with Europe, it is hardly likely that she would expect the full endorsement—and praise as well—of any Commonwealth country whose trade would be severely hit by such a move.

It cannot, in this country, be stressed often enough that Canada is not alone in her criticism of Britain's proposed entry into the Common Market. In it she is firmly allied with the majority of Commonwealth countries.

The document which caused the furor—the full text of a statement to the EEC by Lord Privy Seal Edward Heath, one of Mr. Macmillan's senior ministers who echoed the promise of keeping the Commonwealth "fully" informed—has now been released to all Commonwealth governments.

Apart from one or two significant paragraphs, it is a mild thing wholly unworthy of causing a rift between Britain and the other members of the Commonwealth. And yet the disquieting fact remains that due to the ineptitude of the Macmillan government it has.

If Mr. Macmillan does not act quickly to fall in line with the desires of his other fellow Commonwealth heads-of-state to hold a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference over the matter he may well find himself forced to re-read a speech made by one of his illustrious predecessors which said:

"I have not become the King's First Minister in order to preside over the liquidation of the British Empire..."

A Loss Leader

THE desperate nature of the B.C. Hydro's desire to be rid of the bus system is the best reason why Victoria should shy off.

The power commission is so anxious to get out from under the bus load it will give the system away for nothing, and throw in a 50 per cent cut in the price of the hydro building as well.

One doesn't need to open the horse's mouth to look closely at this gift; the mouth is open wide.

It can't be kept shut. Last year the buses of this area ran at a loss of some $500,000. A few years at this rate would swallow enough tax monies to build two city halls, new ones from the ground up.

The hydro building-city hall deal should be negotiated on its own, separate entirely from the bus franchise. It will be time enough to pick up the latter tab when the franchise runs out in 1967; although if a losing proposition of this magnitude is saddled onto taxpayers' backs the extant government's political fortunes will slump sharply.

By then however some presently unknown method of finance and operation may be devised to make the buses more profitable, or much less expensive.

Meantime the city shouldn't allow itself to be manoeuvred into a disastrous deal for the sake of a new city hall building. Nor should it forget that the other municipalities are also involved in any bus arrangements.

Lack of Push

IN THE LAST days of last year, the Colonist anticipated that in a few weeks the city's policemen were going to be able to strip their thick little blue-covered copies of the Streets Traffic and Regulation Bylaw 1951 (each properly maintained copy containing notations of something like 500 changes) and, with great relief, start using a brand-new, simplified book of regulations to enforce on Victoria streets.

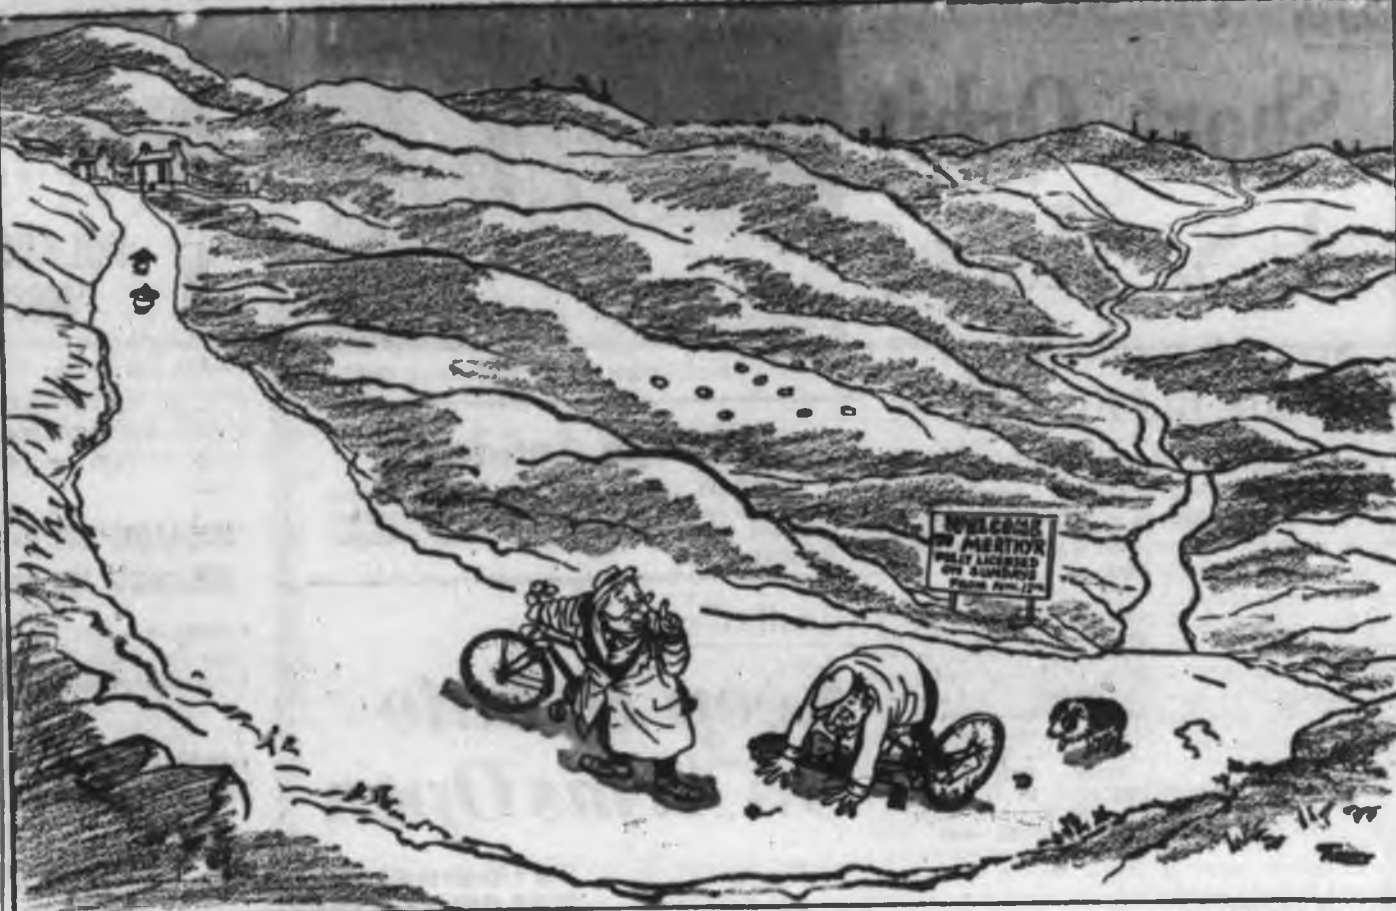

Up to that time, provisions of the bylaw had been altered by 104 amending bylaws, most of them containing not merely a single change in regulations but several. But at the end of last year, a draft of a new bylaw had been prepared for consideration by public works committee in consultation with the police department and then by city council.

The proposed new bylaw was designed to eliminate to a large extent the need for constant amendment; the policeman's lot was soon to be a happier one.

The expectation of quick action, however, was ill-grounded. The further-amended Streets Traffic and Regulation Bylaw 1951 is still in use, to the disadvantage of the public as well as the policeman.

Eleven months have gone by, and city council has not yet received the draft of a new bylaw from public works committee: the police commission suddenly is worried about a dwindling supply of traffic tickets because tickets of a new type cannot be ordered until council passes the new bylaw.

Committee procrastination may not have been entirely to blame for the delay; there may have been some lack of interdepartmental co-ordination and co-operation. But the responsibility lies on the aldermen, who could and should have taken steps to accelerate action. This looks like another example of aldermanic lethargy.

"Here they come, Morgan. Don't forget—sorry we are to be so late, minister's sermon was twice as long this morning." London Express Service.

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships,

By TOM TAYLOR

ONCE before I had cause to wonder if my name shouldn't be Thomasina, and well, I'm wondering again.

All the way from that glittering centre of flimdom, Hollywood, addressed specifically to yours truly, has come a catalogue filled, and I quote, with "fabulous Hollywood holiday magic."

Exotic female styling, to be precise.

Now why me? True enough I once graced the celluloid kingdom with my presence; indeed I stood at the much publicized corner of Hollywood and Vine but, I thought, anonymously. Nor did I find this juncture of the ways as magical as legend had portrayed. Instead it was as prosaic as might be Fort and Douglas at the same hour.

Granted this was at 1 a.m. when, doubtless, I should have been in bed. That's where all the Hollywoodian "stars" were, apparently, much to the undoing of my unsophistication.

I will not gainsay the fact, mind you, that this catalogue is a razzle-dazzler. It's so full of alinky Cleopatras in all manner of strip-tease attire a man might look at it for a full hour if he didn't have more important things to do. And I'm sorry but I can't go into too much detail about the fashion parade it spreads before my eyes. There are some arresting items of feminine wear, you see, that a gentleman doesn't discuss in mixed company.

You wouldn't speak to me again, for instance, did I regale you with a discussion on blow-up bras or other hidden assets of the feminine world.

Now this catalogue, an accompanying note tells me, sells to young ladies, old ladies, fat ladies, skinny ladies, rich ladies, poor ladies and glamorous girls. In short, the whole female gamut.

Despite my recently avowed doubts I can scarcely claim membership in such a scintillating and varied coterie.

There is a little rider, 'tis true, to the effect that 'generals, diplomats, bosses, and boy friends also find the catalogue intriguing, and frankly I'm not surprised.

There is also a sop to the male ego, pictures of three male models equipped with jumpkins, which I take to be the latest term for pyjamas. But there must be hundreds of female bodies strewn around the pages — I wouldn't dare count how many — so obviously these chaps have strayed where they shouldn't.

I wouldn't deny that, as one page asserts, some sleeveless sheaths — "Venus would have flipped" over them — would turn a gal into a siren by candlelight, or that a certain gown called the "Goddess" would make her a doll, but I am hopelessly lost for words.

How can I properly describe the enticing lines of the "Rare and Bold" gowns so temptingly displayed, or speak intelligently of the "High Kick" pleat or the "Cha-Cha" dancing dress that brings "starlight to the eyes."

I don't have the language. I'm out of my element.

Thus the wonder that I should be the beneficiary of this fascinating display of feminine accoutrements, ranging from what I dare not mention to other mysterious items of attire.

Who has been tracking me down? I was in Hollywood only once, incognito, and I didn't leave a forwarding address.

At the United Nations

Anguish, Hatred and Comedy

By CYRIL DUNN, from New York

CONSIDERING the anguish and hatred attached to the major crises brought before the United Nations, it might be supposed that the key debates are marked by an unrelenting and deadly hostility. But, in fact, even the delegates who come here from parts of the world in bitter conflict seem to have worked out, at least on the visible surface, a form of amiable co-existence.

This is typified by the Congo crisis, which the Security Council has been debating. Many great emotional conflicts are involved in it—the subjugated against their subjects, black against white, poor against rich, the people against the capitalists, and, ranging about the perimeter of all this, the opposed and embattled forces of "la guerre froide."

Yet in the Security Council even the ordinary courtesies survive. The allocation of seats at the golden horseshoe table set the foreign minister of Belgium down beside the foreign minister of the Congo. Never once did Mr. Paul Henri Spaak or Mr. Justin Bomboko discard the obligation to shake hands as they took their places.

But the feeling that somehow or another tolerable relations must be maintained goes beyond the formalities. The delegates sometimes go in for little diplomatic jokes, playing them out with what seems to be true enjoyment of an art that reaches back at least to the Congress of Vienna.

It inevitably surprises us to discover that the Russians in particular go in for humor of this kind. Perhaps Mr. Khrushchev's contributions have been somewhat rough and boisterous, but even he has one or two delicately engineered jests to his credit. Nobody would suspect Mr. Tassarkin of humor as he relentlessly pursues some disagreeable objective in debate, working that great underlip like the lower jaw of a predatory pike. But even he can be transformed when a diplomatic dig touches his own ribs.

But the Soviet master of this art is Mr. Valerian Zorin. He, too, has perfect physical camouflage behind which lurks a subtle joker. He has the countenance of a strict and sour headmaster. He has a way of staring fixedly in front of him when he speaks, and to find yourself in his line of vision is unnerving.

Yet when in his high and squeaky Russian he declares an intention to make "a few preliminary remarks," the old hands in the audience laugh appreciatively, well knowing that Mr. Zorin will now proceed to make a few preliminary remarks.

He is most particularly polite to truck drivers, taxi drivers and operators of public buses. For these he will stand aside, allowing them right-of-way.

"A polite driver," he assures me, "can create more high blood pressure in the public than all the rude drivers put together."

Thus, when he drives his car to a corner and sees somebody trying to make a left-hand turn, he invariably ceed to fill at least 12 quarto pages in the verbatim record.

Mr. Zorin began some "preliminary remarks" towards the dark end of a long and trying day, when not even the urgency of the Congo crisis could subdue the yearning of the delegations for their shower baths and dinner. Mr. Zorin's comprehensive review had been mainly an attack on Mr. Spaak, ridiculing his defence of the Belgian government. As soon as it was ended, Mr. Zorin proposed that the council should adjourn, leaving until next day, leaving some translation of everything he had said into English and French, one after the other, as the council's rules of procedure require.

At once there were indignant protests from those who felt Mr. Spaak should not be denied his right of immediate reply. Mr. Zorin spread his hands helplessly, said that if Mr. Spaak wished to speak then, unapologetically, it would be necessary for the council first to sit through the translations. Mr. Zorin said he was left without alternative by the rules—and floodingly he grinned.

Aided by a stubborn Sir Patrick Dean, the British ambassador, who found nothing to laugh at in this Russian artifice, Mr. Spaak was conceded the right to speak for two minutes without first listening to the two encores of Mr. Zorin's speech. He rattled off what he had most urgently to say and, without pausing, he marked his final full stop, went on, "and that took me forty-five seconds." It may seem unlikely that almost everyone could leave a debate on the Congo crisis laughing gently, but that was the way of it.

These Security Council sessions have naturally been dominated by Mr. Spaak. But even without the script one would know that a great man had been with us, one of the statesmen, a global artificer inconspicuously required to defend his own tiny country, almost as if chance had summoned a monarch to render first aid at a bicycle accident in the street. Mr. Spaak is large. When Mr. Zorin called him from the sidelines to take his seat at the table, he walked across the chamber with his jaws quivering slightly and with that strange light grace of movement many fat men have. The Congo crisis, embracing violence and murder, has many of the elements of a "whodunnit." Mr. Spaak at the council table, analyzing the evidence with clarity and a controlled impatience, was to the life, Simonon's Maltrept sweating the truth out of some Flemish crime.

But although Mr. Spaak commanded the audience, he did not overshadow Mr. Bomboko. Mr. Bomboko is small, square and powerful, his jet-black face lumpy with muscle. He dresses with a severe elegance and seems to be in complete command of himself and of his country's dilemma. He speaks with a fierce intelligence, pulling the Gallic phrases down from just behind his head with sharp gestures of his hands.

These two and Mr. Zorin have been the great ones in the cast, but others have had their hour on the stage. There has been Mr. Krishna Menon, continuously ruffling his papers into hopeless confusion—with a diffident aide struggling to restore them to order from behind him—yet never faltering in the smooth flow of his speech.

Britain's Sir Patrick spoke his country's piece clearly and with an aloof precision. In this building Sir Patrick is much enjoyed as one who hides the keen and subtle mind of the British diplomat behind a splendidly authentic show of vagueness. People nudge each other as he drifts into the chamber, looking as if he had just got up and come downstairs to find something he thinks he mislaid the previous night.

Everyone seems to have a story about his detachment—how once he walked into the political committee, stirred the hall as if in a dream, and went straight out again; how once in the delegates' lounge, failing to find a table not in use, he opened his dispatch box out on the floor and crunched over it like an Oxford Street pavement trader sorting his nylons. The French, in particular, watch these performances and know them to be a mask most carefully contrived.

It may in the long run make no difference to the course of events that those who compose the UN are splendidly human and not national stereotypes. But when you are here, somehow or another, you find it immensely reassuring.

In the West Indies

Uncertain Future

By JOHN CROCKER, from Trinidad

WHILE West Indian political leaders, as might have been expected, have denounced the United Kingdom Commonwealth Immigration Bill in no uncertain terms, the press and public reaction have not been so hostile.

The Jamaican premier, Mr. Norman Manley, has said: "The Irish are white; West Indians and Pakistanis are not, and that is the end of the matter." The Grenada government has labelled the bill "discrimination against colored West Indians," and Santa Lucia called it "betrayal."

Both the federal prime minister, Sir Grantley Adams, and the Barbados premier have emphasized the measure's irretrievable damage to the Commonwealth, and Trinidad's Dr. Eric Williams said the bill puts the likelihood of Britain entering the Common Market presented the "most pressing problems."

Letters in the press and editorials, on the other hand, have showed an understanding and tolerance for the bill. The Trinidad Guardian said the bill's provisions appear reasonable enough in view of the circumstances but help should be sought from Britain for economic development programs to counter unemployment.

Observers here generally take the view that the changing Commonwealth pattern must compel West Indians to change their own policy about creating more jobs, and that underdeveloped and under-populated British Guiana and British Honduras should be made to absorb immigrants from the islands.

Meanwhile there is growing concern in Trinidad about the rising unemployment figures and a resulting possible threat to social stability if no outlet is found for the expanding population. Trinidadians will number only a small fraction of the 70,000 migrants expected to reach Britain this year, but there are definite signs of economic trouble ahead which free entry into Britain might have alleviated.

Informed opinion here is that Britain's free entry policy is not reciprocated in other Commonwealth countries or even colonies. It has been suggested that if the West Indies opened the door to immigrants from the United Kingdom an amendment to the present bill might be passed to exclude its application to those Commonwealth countries permitting free immigration from the United Kingdom. It is suggested that this would be a more statesmanlike approach than that so far adopted by some West Indian politicians and would appeal to British liberal thought.

Observers here also feel that West Indians have been made the scapegoat of the British fear of increased immigration from India and Pakistan. It is considered here that Britain can easily cope with the present 200,000 West Indians resident in Britain, and that increased immigration from the Commonwealth as a whole—not specifically the West Indies—is the real reason for the ban. This, basically, is the major cause of any resentment felt here.

Consideration is now being given here and in the other islands to copying the Barbados plan of agreement with the London Passenger Transport Board for the recruiting of migrants with guaranteed jobs. It is believed other similar organizations exist in Britain which would welcome a regular source of labor. Here again, however, there is uncertainty and resentment felt over the possibilities of increased admission to Britain of labor from Common Market countries.

The overall position in the West Indies is that with Jamaica's secession from the West Indies Federation, the whole future is uncertain and likely to be so for a year or two. Equally, the United Kingdom position vis-a-vis the Common Market is uncertain and it is noted here that a migrant ban would only last for five years unless it were renewed. If the bill is applied liberally by the United Kingdom government, observers here feel the West Indies might not suffer too much but they also feel that some possibly irreparable harm has been done to the Commonwealth concept.

Ottawa Report

Quebec Upsurge

By ARTHUR BLAKELY

LIBERALS and Conservatives alike are convinced that the size and importance of the Quebec separatist movements have been exaggerated. Both parties, though, see an upsurge of nationalist sentiment in French Canada. National Liberal Leader Lester Pearson has already pledged his party to the adoption of a distinctive national flag and to the formal designation of O Canada as the national anthem.

The government, not in a position to promise anything it won't perform without delay, is examining similar possibilities. Pressure for bilingual cheques and the posting of a special Canadian mission at the Vatican is also building up.

COLUMBIA — Reliable informants say that the Conservatives would like nothing better than to end the Ottawa-B.C. row over Columbia River power. Feelers may be extended to find out if Premier W. A. C. Bennett has any interest in a resumption of serious negotiations. There's little disposition here to budge fundamentally from a position Ottawa regards as sound. On the other hand, there's said to be room for bargaining on matters of detail.

SOCIAL SECURITY — Key Conservatives are convinced that the government's legislative program for the next session of Parliament will be built around a new social security measure.

Best bet, and one in which Prime Minister Diefenbaker displayed a lively interest in the 1958 general election campaign, is a contributory old age insurance scheme, patterned on a U.S. model, which would supplement the existing old age security pensions. Such a measure would be based on recommendations of the Clark Report, written by Professor R. M. Clark of UBC, who was entrusted with responsibility for a special study by the government.

An important asset of such a measure is that it wouldn't involve an additional and heavy burden on the federal treasury because of the contributory system by which it would be financed.

SOCIALIST — Despite organized labor's close tie with the New Democratic Party, public opinion polls haven't yet revealed evidence of a large vote increase for the NDP in Ontario and Quebec, the most heavily industrialized areas of Canada.

Many of the socialists checked still describe themselves as CCFers, rather than NDP partisans. But even if the CCF and NDP are considered as one, there's been little evidence of substantial swing in popular support in the two central provinces.

AMERICAS — The pressure being brought on Canada by the U.S. and some of the Latin American states to join the Organization of American States, has eased for the moment. But new overtures are expected before long. The government is still of two minds about the matter. One or two cabinet ministers are said to favor membership now. A few others look on OAS membership without any enthusiasm whatever.

But in the main, the government seems to feel that no decision should be made until public opinion has had a chance to form. External Affairs Minister Howard Green is reported to be among those who oppose a snap decision in the immediate future.

STATUARY — One of the more intriguing bits of intelligence to be brought back to Ottawa by one who had journeyed to foreign parts was revealed by Public Works Minister David Walker not long ago. Mr. Walker, who represented Canada at the recent Colombo Plan conference in Malaysia, predicted that the nations of South and Southeast Asia would erect a monument to Canada's Prime Minister Diefenbaker. Why?

"They think," Mr. Walker told reporters, "that Mr. Diefenbaker is the white champion of the colored races."

"He couldn't get that mad at just Russians. It must be our State Department."

Snow Piles Up as Montreal Burns

MONTREAL (CP)—A few weeks ago, before Montreal had any snow, city officials held a rehearsal for snow removal equipment. Everything worked perfectly. The trucks trundled down the street, plows swept along majestically and officials preened themselves happily. Then Tuesday it started to snow. It was still snowing Wednesday night, 20 hours and 13 inches later, and the city was back to its usual snow-storm situation—stuck. The storm dropped eight to 14 inches over a wide belt of Quebec province. Despite the heavy fall, no deaths were blamed on the storm immediately.

The storm, centred over New Brunswick, was expected to drift slowly east ending the snowfall over Montreal during the night. Quebec provincial police said all main highways were open but visibility was almost zero.

Technical School Aid

Canada Shifts Gears In Field of Training

TORONTO (UPI)—Technical and vocational schools to cost $185,000,000 in 10 provinces have been approved under the federal program of a 75 per cent contribution to the cost, Labor Minister Starr said Wednesday.

Starr said that "in Canada we are just beginning to shift gears in the field of training." He said a labor department study has shown 75 per cent of the jobs in Canada are in those areas of work which require high levels of education and training. The remainder consists of semi-skilled and unskilled jobs which, while demanding very little education or training, were the first to suffer in a time of unemployment.

"The main purpose of our new program is to offer all Canadians, young and old, the opportunity to increase their knowledge and skills so that they can compete for employment in a changing industrial world."

He said Canada's technical and vocational training facilities were being increased at a rate of more than 50 per cent in 2 1/2 years. Latest figures showed 141 new institutes of technology, trade schools and technical and vocational high schools are under construction or about to be started. New projects will provide accommodation for an additional 65,000 trainees in full-time courses.

Inside Dope on Poodle Is—No Rings Inside

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Peeler family got the inside dope Wednesday on their poodle, Kelly. He didn't swallow Mrs. Peeler's wedding ring and a diamond ring as far as X-rays can determine. Mrs. Frances Peeler left the rings on a piano bench and they disappeared. The poodle, who had been known in the past to swallow practically anything, was in the vicinity and Mrs. Peeler was pretty sure she knew where the rings had gone. X-rays showed no rings in Kelly but he might have gotten rid of the loot before he was examined. "For all I know, we may have a diamond mine in the backyard," said Mrs. Peeler.

Aid Bound For Belize

MONTREAL (UPI)—A cargo of building materials and drugs will leave aboard the Ss. Harpefjell today for the hurricane-ravaged city of Belize, British Honduras, the Canadian Red Cross Society announced last night.

Double Prosecution For Tax Evaders?

EDMONTON (UPI)—A special session of the Alberta legislature prorogued yesterday after passing legislation on the new federal-provincial tax agreement.

Conservative member Ernest
Watkins said since the province was entering the tax field a person might be prosecuted for an income tax infraction under both federal and provincial statutes.

This raised the possibility of a person being prosecuted in two separate courts with different judgments being handed down, Watkins said.

A full bench of nine judges heard an appeal case Wednesday during which eight B.C. fishing companies and 13 executives of fishing companies argued the commission does not have this power. The federal government contended the commission has the right to

Red Officials Turn Down 'Safe' Cattle

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—
More than 150 head of purebred Ontario cattle, scheduled to leave Montreal for Russia this week along with 270 head from Western Canada, have been turned down by Russian officials in Ottawa.

The Toronto export company handling arrangements for the shipping was told Ontario cattle have been refused, but the western cattle will leave on schedule.

Miss Joanne Warwick, president of Canagro Export Ltd., said the Russians refused the cattle after results from tests by veterinarians.

"It seems Russians are behind our scientific methods," she said. "The reactions showed only minor infections, our farmers and veterinarians don't worry about."

OTTAWA (UPI)—The Canada Council yesterday announced grants totalling $666, 763 to five Canadian universities for construction projects and library expansion.

The largest grant from the University Capital Grants Fund was $400,000 for the University of Montreal to assist in construction of a residence, library and lecture rooms at Sainte-Therese College.

The University of Alberta received $100,000 for an addition to the Banff School of Fine Arts; Huron College, London, Ont., $88,870 (lecture rooms); Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S., $52,912 (women's residence); United College, Winnipeg, $14,981 (residence).

Hitch-Hiker Is Proving His Point

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 19-

it can be done.

"My friends all think I'm crackpot," says Edward Moss who left England three months ago after talking his lecturer at Cambridge into giving him a year's leave of absence.

"Part of the reason for doing it is to prove it can be done."

Ottawa Confident

Warden's Eviction 'Utter Nonsense'

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)— Warden David MacLean of Kingston penitentiary has described as utter nonsense reports that he and Deputy Warden A. J. Jarvis had been told by guards to stay outside the prison.

The warden said he had been in and out of the prison during the day.

The warden said he had received a letter from guards outlining complaints they had voiced at a meeting Monday night. A petition was drawn up at the meeting saying convicts had become insolent, discipline was lacking and staff morale was at a low ebb.

The petition was addressed to Mr. MacLean and to Allan MacLeod, commissioner of penitentiaries.

In Ottawa, Mr. MacLeod expressed his "utmost confidence" in Mr. MacLean.

Mr. MacLeod said he had not yet received the petition drawn up by the guards.

The warden talked to two spokesmen for the guards and promised to try to remedy any problems they may have in dealing with prisoners.

"I know the guards' problems and they know I know and appreciate them," he said.

Just the people

Everything else in the picture on the preceding page is made of cellulose. For that matter, so is this newspaper! And so are some 6,000 other products — products so useful it's unlikely that you spend a day of your life without using several of them. • How long, then, will the supply last? As long as the world lasts! Cellulose comes from trees, and Rayonier Canada can produce over 400 million pounds of it a year. And since we manage British Columbia forest lands scientifically, we grow more cellulose than we harvest. So don't worry about shortages! Use all the cellulose you like — in cellophane, plastics, rayon, acetate, photo film, sausage casings and all the rest. We can go on producing it forever!

More Greeters Than Fans in Toronto

'Grey Cup Specials' No Longer Quite So Special

By DAVE MCINTOSH
TORONTO (CP)—A diagnosis of rail and air transportation into Toronto this week shows that the Grey Cup festival is suffering from hardening of the arteries.

In other words, Toronto at the moment resembles Toronto on a Sunday rather than Toronto in Grey Cup week.

Item: Trans-Canada Air Lines has put on only two extra flights, one from Winnipeg Wednesday and one from Ottawa Friday. There will also be a TCA charter flight from Montreal.

Item: The CNR is running a "Blue and Gold" special out of Winnipeg. But the special comprises only five extra cars on the CNR's Continental and it won't arrive until 7:30 a.m. Saturday, the day of the game.

Item: The CPR is running one 14-car football special from Winnipeg which is scheduled to arrive Friday morning. In other years three or four.

Item: There will be no special trains from Ottawa or Montreal, merely a few extra cars tacked onto the regular runs.

Item: The CNR will run a special from Hamilton but it won't reach downtown. Fans will disembark near the Canadian National Exhibition stadium at noon, one hour before the 1 p.m. (EST) start of the contest between Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Item: Calgary, which really began the Grey Cup Mardi Gras in 1948 here, isn't even entering a float in the Saturday morning parade this year. The Junior Board of Trade here has appointed some 125 members as greeters at Union Station and Malton airport. They may have difficulty finding fans to greet.

In previous years, the influx of fans was much greater. TCA said the fewness of special flights was partly explained by the fact the new Vanguard plane carries more passengers.

The Junior Board of Trade is sponsoring the parade, an event which began in 1951. It says that there will be about 38 floats from cities across Canada and about 18 bands.

Like the game, the parade will be televised nationally. The predicted cold wave probably will reduce attendance. The parade is scheduled to start at 9:15 a.m. Toronto time.

One hotel manager said festivities are so subdued that he may not take the usual precautionary measure of lifting carpets and removing potted plants to sanctuary.

One widely-accepted estimate of the business worth of the Grey Cup game to Toronto is about $1,000,000. But with most fans arriving so late from out of town, this estimate now appears bloated.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

TOO MUCH TALKING: Art Chapman's record speaks for itself, and he might well enough let well enough alone instead of succumbing to the urge to do some shouting of his own.

Records show that Chapman was the most successful Western Hockey League coach of all over a lengthy period. In nine years at the reins of the Vancouver Canucks, he finished first four times, second twice and third twice. His Canucks had only one losing season in winning 324, losing 245 and tying 61 games under his control and they twice won the playoff title.

Chapman didn't have good teams in all of those nine years and it has to be admitted that he almost always got the most out of his talent. But Chapman always had a good goalkeeper—fellows like Emile Francis and Marcel Pelletier at their best, Lorne Worsley, Johnny Bower and Hank Bassen—and a strong defence so that his "system" of kitty-bar-the-door hockey worked. It made him a winning coach but many a young prospect sent by the New York Rangers was lucky if he just marked time while playing the Chapman system, which was only defensive hockey at its dullest.

As a last gesture before leaving for his new job in California, Chapman agreed to help the Canucks, now owned by the PNE, a neophyte in the hockey business, line up a club. He didn't have too much success but left defiantly claiming that Canucks had their best-ever talent.

It was, at best, a ridiculous statement. The Canucks had Claude Evans, not much more than barely acceptable and with a lifetime goals-against average of four, for goal, and Dale Anderson and a bunch of guys named Joe for defence. Up front, there was a sprinkling of goal talent in such as coach Phil Maloney, Larry Popen, Dave Duke and Barry Ross but no depth.

This, Chapman said as he put Maloney behind the eight-ball before he ever started his coaching career, was the best-ever collection of Canucks talent. Somehow, I can't help but feel Maloney wouldn't have minded starting the season, for instance, with Chapman's 1959-60 champions.

Remember that club? It was perhaps the best ever assembled in the WHL. There was Bassen in goal. On defence, Chapman had Larry Cahan, Ralph Keller, Brent Macnab, Anderson and Sandy Hucul and his forwards were Colin Kilburn, Bruce Carmichael, Gordon Veprava, Danny Belisle, Ed Dorohoy, Duke, Orland Kurtenbach, Ray Cyr, Bob Kabel and Ron Hutchinson.

But Chapman still insists that this season's Canucks are a solid club and blame a lack of "system" for their lack of success. He has even offered to come back and straighten things out and while Canucks have added defensive strength in Les Hunt and Hugh Currie and picked up a good forward in Bob McCusker since Chapman left, he deserves that fate. That the PNE, however, is inclined to take him up on his offer is another proof that public ownership in professional sport is bad for the public and the sport. And, in this case, particularly bad for a fine fellow and excellent player named Maloney who's probably too nice to do what he should do if Chapman is brought back.

NO POT OF GOLD: Jim Piggott, who resignedly marked time in Victoria with the Cougars while waiting for it to be worth all the trouble.

Recent crowd figures from the city of smog have listed Western Hockey League attendances at below 2,500 fans in an arena which will hold about 13,000. The Blades will probably wind up with more paid admissions this season than the Cougars got last season but a good guess would be that Piggott will need about 200,000 fans to break even this season.

Expenses in Los Angeles must be monumental by WHL standards. One hears that it cost more to assure training camp press coverage than the Cougars paid out for their entire training camp. An expensive tub-thumper is a necessary evil, the cost of living jacks up players' salaries, the added travelling expenses are no mean item. It would hardly be surprising if it took $300,000 to keep the Blades from using red ink this season.

A first-year financial setback could be accepted if there was any real chance of making it up in other seasons but minor-league hockey in sunny Southern California looks like a lost cause, and it's doubtful if even the National Hockey League would prosper there.

I don't wish Mr. Piggott any bad luck but the thought remains he had a pretty good thing going for him here if he had just got it going.

SEEN IN PASSING: Cliff and Don Sepka looking around the city, perhaps for a job which would bring them here permanently. It is just possible that the Victoria Inter-City Lacrosse League club might help in the hunt. They're looking themselves—for players.

GUESSING DEPARTMENT: Montreal and Detroit in tonight's NHL games and Spokane in the WHL. Bating average to date: At bat 228, hits 147, percentage .645.

First United Juniors Add Another Victory

First United added another victory to its tally in the junior men's basketball league last night, edging Victoria Optimists, 53-50, at Mount View High School gym.

Bob Harris scored 15 points and Kerry Greenwood 15 for United to offset a fine 22-point effort by Optimists' Ray Williams.

In women's action, Louise Payer scored 23 points for Vicettes, but her effort wasn't quite enough as Vicettes lost out, 40-38, to Victoria University.

Scorers: Vicettes—Calby Frost 2, Pat Baird 2, Colleen Thomas, Carol Stromm, Maxine Cook, A. Barb Gardner, Bernice Adams, Louise Payer, Cary Thomas, Jeanne Bourne, Daphne Suggs, 2, 3, 4.

Victoria University—S. Harvey 5, J. Swan 4, R. Buhl 3, M. Alexander 3, M. May 1, J. McMillan 4, A. Williams 3, 2, 1, 1.

First United—Mithell 3, Turner 3, Hurrell 18, Greenwood 15, Gault 6, Bellack 6, 2, 1, 1.

New Formation

Victoria University Vikings' Tom Wyatt, top, and Ellery Littleton are out to add a little height to team, and Vikings may need it tomorrow night when they face Everett Junior College Trojans, who average 6'4". Game time is 8 p.m. at Gordon Head gym. —(Colonist photo.)

Leaf Gardens Grand Arena If You Play for Toronto

Toronto Maple Leafs came from behind twice last night and tied Montreal Canadiens, 2-2, to run their unbeaten streak at Maple Leaf Gardens to 10 games.

It was chapter one of a two-part series to decide first place in the National Hockey League, Leafs and Canadiens, still tied for first place, go at it again tonight in Montreal Forum.

The Leafs would much rather not leave home. In 10 home games this season they have won eight and been tied twice. Two of those wins have been over the Canadiens, and they had enough of an edge to play last night to warrant another victory.

It took a great defensive stand by Tom Johnson and Al MacNeil to stop them, particularly in the second period when Leafs took 14 shots at Jacques Plante and scored only once.

Johnson was later admitted to hospital with an eye injury. First reports indicated he had a hemorrhage behind one eye, but extent of the damage was not immediately known.

HABS OUTSHOT

Leafs outshot the listless-looking Canadiens, 37-29. Montreal took the lead on Marcel Bonin's goal in the first period, Bobby Nevin tied it in the second, and Lou Fontana got the lead back for Montreal early in the third period.

From there the Leafs put on the pressure, and Bob Pulford tied it again at 11:01, taking a pass from Ed Shack.

At Chicago, the Black Hawks found another reason to be grateful Boston Bruins are in the NHL. The Hawks have only six wins to show for this season and three of them have been against Boston, the last a 7-4 win last night.

Bobby Hull scored three goals and Stan Mikita two. Ken Wharram and Ron Murphy got the others and rookie Ed Westfall, Wayne Connolly, Jerry Toppazzini and Leo Bolvin scored for the Bruins.

Agar Swings at Timekeeper As Blades Fall Goal Short

Coach George Agar of Los Angeles blew his attack in San Francisco last night, taking a swing at the timekeeper after his Blades had scored three times in the third period only to lose out, 7-6, to San Francisco Seals.

The Blades, in last place in the southern division of the Western Hockey League, had overcome a 6-1 first-period deficit, getting the score to 7-6 at 17:49 of the third period. But they couldn't get the tying goal, although they pulled goalkeeper Gerry Waugh in the final minute.

When the final buzzer blew, Agar rushed to the timer's bench, screaming at timer Dick Sager that there were still three seconds to play.

Chuck Greenstone, vice-president of the Seals, who was sitting near Agar, said the enraged coach swung at him, at Sager and at the clock. Arena guards finally hauled him away to the dressing room.

Waugh, playing his second game for the Blades, made 31 stops and Bev Bentley blocked 40 for the Seals.

Harry Pithiray, Al Nicholson, Ray Cyr, Duke Edmundson, Buddy Boone, Gord Redahl and Nick Mickowski scored for the Seals and Gerry Goyer with two, Dan Belisle, Terry Slater, Ed Pangabko and Wally Hergeshelmer scored in the ill-fated Los Angeles rally.

LEADERS WIN

The leaders in both divisions won last night's other games. Portland Buckaroos beat Seattle Totems, 3-1, before 6,123 fans in Portland, and Edmonton Flyers stopped the Stampede, 5-4, before a crowd of 1,923 at Calgary.

Rookie Larry Jeffrey led the Flyers with two goals and John Miskuz, Warren Hynes and Len Lundie got one each. Jim Moro continued to find the Flyers easy meat, duplicating his two-goal effort of Tuesday night. Fred Hucul and Lou Jankowski got the others.

Bill Saunders, Tom McVie and Arnie Schmutz scored for the Buckaroos, who had a 3-0 lead before Don Ward beat Bruce Gambe late in the second period.

Cassius Clay Stops Willi

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Cassius Clay, with the speed of a pile-driver, scored a technical knockout over Willi Bosmanoff in the seventh round of a scheduled 10-round heavyweight fight Wednesday night. Bosmanoff was never in the fight.

Clay, 19, who says he will be champion before he is 21, twice floored Bosmanoff in the seventh.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Vancouver alderman Wednesday night urged Pacific National Exhibition directors to sell Vancouver Canucks and said former National League players, Clint Smith, Babe Pratt and "some others" are interested in buying.

Frank Fredrickson advised a PNE directors' meeting to "get out of something you know nothing about" and "let someone else invest their risk capital."

He said an offer was made for the Western Hockey League club several months ago and added the group of former NHL players now is interested.

The PNE bought the club which occupies the northern division cellar spot this year from Coley Hall who now has the San Francisco Seals franchise in the same league.

Fredrickson also questioned the PNE's decision to bring Canucks former manager back to try to get the team moving. He said recent remarks made by Chapman about playing coach Phil Maloney were disturbing and unfair.

A Club Social Bonspiel with a twist is scheduled for next Saturday night starting at 7:30 p.m. Each player of a team will skip two ends of the game, so here's your chance leads and seconds, to show the skips how the game should be played. Conversely you might find out a few problems the skip has to confront. Enter your name on the Club Social Board for an interesting evening. Entertainment and refreshments will follow the curling activities.

All High School Curlers who intend playing in the Pacific Coast Christmas Bonspiel in Vancouver, are asked to contact Gar Taylor immediately for entry forms.

Just a reminder that on Saturday evening, Dec. 16, a Turkey Shoot commences with prizes of turkeys, hams and bacon. Winners are those that can draw closest to the button in their own group—and that's all there is to it. One cold draw and you could win your Christmas turkey!

SCENE AT THE CURLING CLUB

Assured of Title

Assured of top spot among money winners on the professional golf trail although there are two tournaments remaining is South Africa's Gary Player, who has earned $64,540, to become first non-American ever to lead the PGA tour.

Faloney Schenley Winner

TORONTO (UPI)—Cast-off quarterback Bernie Faloney, who had to go to court to keep his job with the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Wednesday was named Canada's outstanding football player and winner of the Schenley Trophy and a $1,000 bond.

The 29-year-old former Maryland All-American, who made history guiding the Tiger-Cats from last to first place in one year, beat out three-time winner and eight-time finalist Jackie Parker of Edmonton Eskimos.

Winnipeg tackle Frank Rigney was named the line-man of the year and Calgary defensive end Tony Palanca, known as the top Canadian. Each received a trophy and a $500 bond.

Judging from last night's game in Nanaimo, the fans there just don't care.

TIED WITH NAVY

There were less than 100 there to watch Nanaimo sink the Independent Athletic Association, 12-4, and move further ahead of IAA, now tied with Victoria for second place.

They missed quite a fight in the third period, when IAA's Jim McNeill high-sticked Bud Dumont. Both drew minors and majors for fighting, and several other players got into the act.

GAME MISCONDUCT

Dumont tried to continue the battle after the game ended and drew a match penalty, and IAA coach Ferg McPherson was handed a game misconduct for stepping out of the box during the first fight.

'Get Out of Hockey' PNE Directors Urged

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Vancouver alderman Wednesday night urged Pacific National Exhibition directors to sell Vancouver Canucks and said former National League players, Clint Smith, Babe Pratt and "some others" are interested in buying.

Frank Fredrickson advised a PNE directors' meeting to "get out of something you know nothing about" and "let someone else invest their risk capital."

He said an offer was made for the Western Hockey League club several months ago and added the group of former NHL players now is interested.

The PNE bought the club which occupies the northern division cellar spot this year from Coley Hall who now has the San Francisco Seals franchise in the same league.

Fredrickson also questioned the PNE's decision to bring Canucks former manager back to try to get the team moving. He said recent remarks made by Chapman about playing coach Phil Maloney were disturbing and unfair.

A Club Social Bonspiel with a twist is scheduled for next Saturday night starting at 7:30 p.m. Each player of a team will skip two ends of the game, so here's your chance leads and seconds, to show the skips how the game should be played. Conversely you might find out a few problems the skip has to confront. Enter your name on the Club Social Board for an interesting evening. Entertainment and refreshments will follow the curling activities.

All High School Curlers who intend playing in the Pacific Coast Christmas Bonspiel in Vancouver, are asked to contact Gar Taylor immediately for entry forms.

Just a reminder that on Saturday evening, Dec. 16, a Turkey Shoot commences with prizes of turkeys, hams and bacon. Winners are those that can draw closest to the button in their own group—and that's all there is to it. One cold draw and you could win your Christmas turkey!

Four Downs for Canadian Football?

TORONTO (UPI) — Canada's nine pro football clubs meet today to consider suggested rule changes that would further "Americanize" the game.

The closed-door Canadian football league meeting will discuss proposals for an increase in the number of American imports, the use of four instead of three downs and a switch to 11 instead of 12-man football.

Several of the ideas seem certain to be rejected; others, however, appear to have a good chance of acceptance. The closest thing to unanimity among the nine teams appears to be on the subject of increasing the present 29-man playing roster. Some clubs favor playing everyone in camp, but a compromise of about 32 players seems likely.

The thinking among most general managers was that, since the club paid for reserve players anyway, they might as well dress them, even if only to handle punt returns and the like. Some also felt that having an extra three or four players dressed would provide valuable insurance in event of mid-game injuries.

Edmonton Eskimo general manager Joe Ryan earlier this week revealed that he favored the move to four downs to try and open up the game. There was little indication, however, that the other clubs, some of which jealously guard the "distinctiveness" of the Canadian game, were ready to go along with him.

The Ottawa Rough Riders, who will seek the reduction to 11-man teams, were after the change mainly on economic grounds. They saw it as a quick way to cut costs by eliminating two salaries—one on offense and one on defense—as well as a change that should make for more wide-open action. Here again, how-

Cus Clobbered In Verbal War

TORONTO — Cus D'Amato was frothing at the mouth again yesterday, but he came out a clear loser in a verbal battle with Ontario Athletic Commissioner Merv McKenzie.

D'Amato worked himself into a rage in McKenzie's office because the commission has refused to use non-Canadian judges for Monday's heavy weight championship bout between Floyd Patterson and Tom McNeely.

"I'LL FIND OUT"
"I'm questioning the integrity of the commission," D'Amato shouted. "Our understanding has been violated. I'm going to take this to a higher authority. Who? I don't know, but I'll find out." McKenzie wasn't impressed. Asked who D'Amato could appeal to, he replied: "I don't know—maybe my wife."

"I've tangled horns with D'Amato two or three times over this," he told reporters present at the dispute. "We'll use our judges or he can take the fight out of here—to Bongo-Bongo if he wants." Earlier the McNeely camp won a round when it was agreed to use six-ounce gloves instead of the eight-ouncers asked by Patterson.

FULLER ANGRY
But the champ won an important one too, when McKenzie said the mandatory eight count would not be waived as it usually is in title fights. Pete Fuller, McNeely's manager, was almost as angry as D'Amato over this.

"The first time I ever heard of this not being done was in the March 13 fight when the two eight counts in the first round probably saved Patterson's title when Johansson floored him twice," he said.

The fight will be limited to closed-circuit television, but carried in Canada on the CBC radio network.

Leaders Held To 4-4 Draw

Saanich Warriors held first-place Eddie's to a 4-4 draw in Sunday division play in the Combination Soccer League. In other Sunday play, Oak Bay beat Duncan's, 2-1, Painters edged Hornets, 3-2, and Northwesterers downed Falcons, 4-2. In the Saturday division, B.C. Forest blanked B.C. Electric, 2-0, and William Head edged Royal Roads, 2-1.

Watson on Curling

Front Rock Real Saver

By KEN WATSON

Once a skip accepts the premise that it is poor judgment to ask for his lead stone in front of the rings on the first end, it does not necessarily follow that he should pursue this habit if the tide of battle turns against him in later ends.

But don't get me wrong! Do not infer that a deficit of one or two points provides this excuse. As long as the game is reasonably close the first stone should be swept into scoring position. Even if the opposition jumps into a three or four-point lead during the early stages there is no need to switch the strategy. Maintain the offensive and keep your boys drawing. By so doing you keep your opponents hitting thus giving them little opportunity to get the feel of draw-weight.

NEW EXCEPTIONS

The exceptions to this rule are few and in most cases are applicable to the later stages of the game when the situation becomes more desperate and some change is necessary to shake the curling confidence of the opposing team. Let us take a look at a few of them.

(1) You have scored a single on the ninth end but still two or three points down playing the 10th in a 12-end match. Place your first stone halfway in from the hog then hope for a miss or a square hit so you can hide behind the stone up front. When calling for a rock up ahead remember the tricky runs where stones are harder to hit.

TRY IT EARLIER

(2) If your opposing skip is trigger-happy and inclined to use the heavy artillery when two or three points ahead try No. 1 a little earlier in the game for the sound effects.

(3) Sometimes the ice is awingy, making sure hitting difficult. Under duress when fortunes are fading pull the first rock up close to the rings. Excellent bait for an opposing skip with a defensive complex.

(4) Should your No. 1 be unable to hit a barn door at ten paces and his opposing number be one of those rare sharp-shooting leads throw the book out the window and put the first stone out in the front yard.

HANG ON

Once the initiative has been taken, hang onto it. Get that first chunk of syenite into the rings and keep your opponents off balance by maintaining the pressure. Then you'll never have to sink home and sneak in the back door after the game.

Now for some pointers on the accompanying illustration:

No. 1—Too easy to hit and remove. If opponent does hit and stick it is too far out to remain an effective guard.

No. 2—Ideal position for a rock in front.

No. 3—Good strategy if you want to tempt the other skip to hit when his team is drawing well.

No. 4 and 5—If there is a run or fall in the ice, either of these positions might be preferable to a stone on centre line.

No. 6—On most ice this guard is too short to draw behind. Yet on awingy ice it could be perfect.

City Pockets $1,750 From Seven Charges

Seven charges of impaired driving brought a total of $1,750 into city coffers during the month of October.

This came to light in a report released to the board of police commissioners yesterday.

Of $7,553 in property reported stolen during the month, $3,683 was recovered, while $850 out of $1,390 in property reported lost was returned to the owners.

Traffic department reported one person killed and 40 injured in car accidents with the total number of traffic accidents of all types reaching 111.

Some 69 charges laid under the Criminal Code brought in a total of $2,580 and a further $3,685 was collected in fines under the Motor Vehicle Act.

City bylaws were instrumental in the collection of $5,443 in fines, including a whopping $3,816 for overparking at meters.

The report disclosed the city police force suffered 82-man-days of sickness during the month.

Newfoundland Strike Near

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP) — Negotiations between four unions and Bowater's Newfoundland Pulp and Paper Mills Ltd. broke down Tuesday bringing closer a strike which would close the plant.

F. C. Colbourne, spokesman for the unions' joint negotiations committee, said following the three-hour meeting the strike would begin "very shortly."

The 1,200 union members voted last weekend in favor of the strike.

Arbitration will not be considered by the unions, Mr. Colbourne said. A conciliation board report was turned down by the unions.

The board, which said company and unions could not agree on what union should be bargaining agent for trainees on paper machines, recommended the unions sign a new one-year wage and working agreement, leaving the question of trainees to joint union-company subcommittee for study until the next contract.

All other differences were settled.

Bargaining rights for the trainees now are held by the United Papermakers and Paperworkers (CLC). The unions want them switched to the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers (CLC).

The company objects because the change could affect the freedom of movement of the trainees between paper machines and other parts of the mill.

The conciliation report was accepted by the company.

Gaglardi Reinstates Suspended Worker

Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi has ordered the reinstatement of departmental laboratory supervisor Robert B. Glen following an investigation by the attorney-general's department.

Mr. Glen, who works in Vancouver, was suspended earlier this month for writing a letter which appeared as if the department was endorsing a road filler compound.

Mr. Gaglardi said the employee had committed an "in-discretion." But, he added, he had always been a good employee and it had been decided he should be reinstated.

Mr. Gaglardi said he was not "saying anything for or against" the compound—which goes under the name of "Po-zand"—but that several such compounds were at present being tested by the department.

Victorian Killed in Interior

Engineering graduate at the University of British Columbia last June, 24-year-old Lyle Begg of Victoria was killed in an accident early yesterday in the Revelstoke area while working for the B.C. Power Commission.

According to word reaching Victoria, Begg and two other young engineers had left their camp at 1.30 a.m. yesterday to check some drills in the wake of heavy rains.

They were returning in their truck when the vehicle left the road and landed in a nearby stream.

The driver of a car following saw the tracks of the truck leaving the road and went to the camp for a crew to help investigate.

The other two engineers, not identified here, were found unconscious or dazed near the truck.

All three were taken to hospital.

An inquest will be held at Revelstoke today.

Lyle Begg was born in Victoria, son of J. R. Begg, a member of the Victoria Press composing room staff, and Mrs. Begg, 2742 Scott.

VICTORIA HIGH

He was educated at Oaklands School and Victoria High School before going to UBC.

Besides his parents he is survived by two brothers, Dennis and Wayne, and three sisters, Sandra, Susan and Laurel, all at home.

'No Ottawa Takeover'

Columbia Pact Near

of refusing sale of Columbia power to the U.S.

Mr. Fulton stated emphatically that Ottawa is not wavering, but he held the door open for short-term power sale approval after reportedly stating "Mr. Bennett is talking about 60 years and that is out of the question."

One of B.C.'s Columbia River negotiators last night told the Colonist that the province has never contemplated an agreement for sale of downstream benefits to the U.S. beyond 20 to 25 years.

Another pointed out that Mr. Fulton's speech enabled Ottawa to agree to a 20-year sale of downstream benefits while still maintaining:

● That Ottawa has not revised its policy denying B.C. approval for "long-term" Columbia power sales.

"In point of fact," said one of B.C.'s top power negotiators, "one view, not necessarily subscribed to by ourselves, is that there will be no downstream benefit power attributable to B.C. after about 35 years."

He said the U.S. holds the view that thermal power will supplant the need for Canadian control over the Columbia for power purposes at the end of 35 years and that the only benefits which B.C. would get after that would be cash payments for flood control measures.

British Columbia, he stated, could amortize more than $300,000,000 worth of Columbia River development through a 20-year agreement for downstream benefit sale at a price of five mills.

One Columbia observer yesterday said that first appearances to the contrary, Mr. Fulton's speech shows that Ottawa and B.C. are closer to agreement on the downstream benefit issue than ever before.

REPLY AWAITED

"What could be more acceptable than for Ottawa to say it will agree to short-term sale for 20 years and halt this as a victory for federal power policy and for British Columbia to accept this and halt it as ultimate acceptance of its aims for Columbia power sale?" he asked.

If such an agreement is reached, Premier Bennett has said B.C. can develop both the Columbia and the Peace Rivers simultaneously.

The premier yesterday was still awaiting a reply to his letter requesting a new federal-provincial Columbia talk with Finance Minister Donald Fleming and for the second straight day declined comment on the situation.

A spokesman termed it "unthinkable" that in view of Mr. Fulton's Prince George speech the federal government would turn down the chance to reopen negotiations.

Winter Works Called Farce

The provincial government is playing "put and take" with Victoria's labor force, Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow charged last night.

"The way they have set up their grants to help pay for winter works projects we are being forced to put regular, experienced employees out of work and take inexperienced men on staff," he said.

"This is a farce because it will not work."

Ald. Edgelow, chairman of city public works committee, was commenting on the government's action this week in easing the restrictions under which B.C. pays 25 per cent of labor costs on approved winter works projects.

"I have discussed this with our engineers and we are still going to see the provincial secretary Wesley Black about it," Ald. Edgelow added.

In the past the province paid 25 per cent of the labor costs for city employees hired for winter works jobs from the ranks of those receiving welfare payments.

In a directive issued this week, the provincial government advised it will pay the 25 per cent grant for experienced men employed on winter works projects, up to 10 per cent of the total labor force.

"This is not enough," Ald. Edgelow said. Edgelow said, "There are so many projects which can be done under winter works but it is a hindrance if you can't put experienced key men on the job."

"Labor is suffering through this sort of game which is going on."

"But this doesn't apply only to the city," he added. "All municipalities suffer because of this."

Would You Like a Second Income?

Hundreds of people like you are enjoying a SECOND INCOME. They actually share in the profits of major Canadian industries. By periodic purchases of Trans-Canada shares, they build up an investment in such solid and profitable Canadian corporations as Imperial Oil Limited, International Nickel Company, Ford Motor Company of Canada and many others.

Costs Only Pennies a Day

Although a single share in any one of these companies may sell for from fifty to a hundred dollars or more, you can participate in the plan for just pennies a day. In other words, you don't have to be wealthy to take part in the Trans-Canada Investment Plan, and to share in the dividends paid by leading Canadian corporations. You can even have life insurance added, at no cost to you, if you choose the Trans-Canada self-insured investment plan.

Established 38 Years

Trans-Canada Investment Corp. Ltd. is one of the oldest organizations in the field. During their twenty-eight years, they have paid out hundreds of thousands of dollars in dividends—have never failed to pay a dividend!

Mrs. Baker's Pride Keeps Her Going

"I just had to realize that a tragedy doesn't mean the end of responsibility," she said. "The children kept on growing, learning new things, needing new things. I had seen other families faced with the same problem—and I saw them fall apart at the seams."

"You must never let go. If a sock needs mending, then mend it. If the house needs paint, then paint it."

"You must keep your pride in your family intact. You must nourish your self-respect and you must keep your house in order."

"This will not make life easy but it will make it possible."

Though she has problems enough to occupy all her waking hours, Mrs. Baker still has time for her community.

A few months ago, she canvassed her neighborhood for the Community Chest. Every Sunday, she and her numerous brood head for church where Mrs. Baker sings in the choir.

A few days before Christmas this year, Mrs. Baker will receive a gift from the people of Victoria through The Daily Colonist 500 fund.

Your generosity will determine just what kind of Christmas dinner she will provide for herself and the children she loves so much.

When you send or bring money for the fund to The Daily Colonist, 2631 Douglas, you should specify whether you wish to remain anonymous since lists of donors are published regularly.

Mayor, Alderman

Mooney Takes Double Papers

Ald. Millard Mooney, whose term on city council ends this year, yesterday obtained nomination papers for both the mayoralty and aldermanic elections.

In a statement to city council last week, Ald. Mooney made it plain he will take part in the Dec. 14 elections but he has consistently refused to say which race—mayoralty or aldermanic.

He refused again last night. Meanwhile, four persons have submitted their nomination papers to city hall, making their candidature official. Former mayor Percy George, a member of the Public Utilities Commission, signed the nomination papers of R. B. Williams, one of three men who have announced they will seek the mayoralty.

Other nomination papers entered are for George Taylor, 1831 Richardson, who is contesting the aldermanic election, and two men who are seeking seats on the Greater Victoria school board—in-cumbent David Logan, 2666 Capital Heights, and newcomer John Warren Porteous, 165 Joseph Street, whose papers were signed by retiring trustee Kenneth Leeming.

Rumors of Private Sale

Bus Drivers' Morale Reaches a New Low

By JACK FRY

Morale of Victoria's bus drivers reached a new low yesterday with reports that Brig-Gen. Timothy Manning of West Vancouver is involved in the web of negotiations about disposal of B.C. Electric's transit system.

The drivers have expressed fears of what will become of the system and their jobs if it is sold to a private individual.

"They don't know from day-to-day where they stand and the oldtimers understandably are worried about job security," said a union official.

SELL AT PROFIT
BCE tried this summer to reduce an annual $500,000 deficit here by shortening routes and now it's reported B.C. Hydro would gladly sell the B.C. Hydro building to the city at half price if the city will accept the transit system as a gift.

The city could then sell the service at a profit to Gen. Manning's group. It was suggested.

WITHOUT DEPOT
A private owner could make a huge profit by selling either the Pembroke Street, garage property or the Garbally Road depot beside Douglas Street, said a street railwaymen's union official.

"A person could run the buses through town without a depot and make $250,000 from sale of the Garbally depot to a hotel chain," said union secretary Joseph Belton.

VARIOUS GRANTS
The quoted $500,000 loss estimates could be cut in half now that one-third charges are not being made against the service for cost of the Pandion building, top BCE executive salaries and various grants.

"But the rest of the loss is still a hole in the pocket. Why would a man want to come in and take over such a money-losing proposition unless he's got something up his sleeve?" asked Mr. Belton.

TAKE CREAM
"Anyone could buy the BCE transit system for a token down payment. Final payments may never be made. Some operators would take the cream of the revenue for a short period and then leave the broken down equipment for the city or government to pick up."

The local service has a fleet of 105 buses, most of which need immediate replacement at a cost of from $30,000 to $40,000 each. Some of the buses are 17 years old, he said.

MORE FREQUENT
"Mechanics are doing a good job but it stands to reason repairs are going to become more frequent as the fleet gets older," he said. "The service will cost a lot of money to keep in operation but the city would die without it."

Three-Cent Cut

Cheap Gasoline To Start Battle

By BOB PETHICK

A gasoline price war is about to erupt in Victoria. First battle is expected within the coming week with the opening at Burnside and Alpha of Vancouver Island's first bulk sales gasoline station.

R. A. Vandekerckhove, operator of a chain of stations in the Vancouver area and now completing construction of the Victoria station, said last night he will sell gasoline three cents below the general price level here.

TWO CENTS
Several other service station operators in the Greater Victoria area are making plans to stay within two cents of the cut price.

City service station operators pointed out the bulk sales outlet is limited to cash alone, with no credit card service or garage facilities.

48 CENTS
Mr. Vandekerckhove told the Colonist last night his price on regular gasoline would be 42 cents a gallon, with premium gasoline selling at 47 cents.

City gasoline prices are now 44.5 cents for regular and 49.5 for premium.

DEALERS PAID
An oil company official in Vancouver said regular gasoline was selling at 38.9 cents a gallon by the oil companies as a support measure due to a price war in Vancouver.

Gasoline for the new service station here will be purchased in Bellingham, Wash., and trucked to Victoria by way of Nanaimo.

Would Oak Bay Accept Reeve From Victoria?

By TED SHACKLEFORD

Mayorality candidate J. Donald Smith poses the question: "What would the people of Oak Bay think if a city resident went out there and ran for reeve?"

He used the question to emphasize his contention that members of city council should be residents of the city. Mr. Smith is the only city resident to date who is seeking the mayoralty.

"When you have members of council coming in from other municipalities, passing bylaws with which they themselves don't have to live, it is defeating the purpose of local municipal government," he said.

SMOKE PROBLEM
"People who live in the Gorge-Burnside area are certainly more anxious to correct the smoke problem than someone living outside the city."

Mr. Smith's call for home rule came when he was listing problems facing the city.

NEUTRAL PRESS
"Our biggest problem in Victoria today is the lack of a neutral press. Our local press gave very bad advice to the homeowners on the multi-million-dollar parking mall on View Street in 1958, but the homeowners wisely rejected their advice."

BAD ADVICE
"They subsequently gave... downtown business property owners similar bad advice on the $1,000,000 parking facilities, and now these people want to get out of their predicament."

"And now our local press is giving the voters equally bad advice for Dec. 14. I am sure the voters are going to reject that too."

Mr. Smith's views on other questions:

Voting facilities. Multiple.

Amalgamation. Metropolitan government by legislation, one municipality and protection against transfer of debt.

City Hall. I favor a new city hall when the people decide it is time to move on the issue.

We don't know yet what the people want—they haven't been given the opportunity to say.

Auditorium. Yes, if it could be financed without increasing home-owners' tax bills.

Secret Meetings. No.

Downtown Pensioners' Centre. Yes, a civic centre such as I have suggested would include that but it should be large enough to include all our citizens.

Bus System. I am unalterably opposed to our home-owners being saddled with any debt with respect to the bus system.

Capital Financing. I favor the pay-as-we-go plan with a review of this policy from time to time.

Mr. Smith, at present representing Victoria as a Social Credit member of the legislature, has also served as an alderman.

ALDERMAN TWICE
He was elected to city council in 1951 and resigned in 1953 to contest the mayoralty election. Defeated, he was re-elected as an alderman in 1954 and served until 1957.

Elected to the legislature in 1956, he served both as an alderman and MLA for 18 months.

TWO DAUGHTERS
Mr. Smith, 42, is married and has two daughters, Wendy, 8, and Sherry, 6.

A past president of Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce, he also acted as chairman for one of the annual Jayco exhibitions. He was a charter member of Victoria Optimist Club and a number of other clubs.

CLAIMS CREDIT
Mr. Smith claims credit for instituting Victoria's business tax "which brought in an additional $1,000,000 in revenue—a direct saving to the home-owners on their taxes."

Who'll Take a Dog To a Lonely Man?

Wanted—someone to transport a small black dog to a lonely man on Salt Spring Island.

Of all the requests for pets received during the year by the SPCA, the most touching arrived yesterday.

H. C. Buchanan, of Oushoon Lake Road, Salt Spring, wrote that he lived alone in a shack surrounded by hills, bush and evergreens, an ideal place for a dog.

"I have no friends or relatives," he said, "I could afford a transfer and dog tag by Dec. 23."

SPCA officials were quick to pick out a dog "that looks like a spaniel," and decided to add a collar for the little animal.

"In this case there will be no charge for the dog," said SPCA manager Norman Stephens.

Mystery Victim Better

A woman who was found on the Ingham Hotel parking lot early Sunday, unconscious and seriously injured, soon may be able to tell what happened.

Mrs. Juanita Clark, 36, of 303 Admirals, who suffered head injuries and bruises and abrasions to her hands and knees, has shown "great improvement" at St. Joseph's hospital.

She is conscious part of the time and has spoken a few words, a hospital spokesman said last night.

Three Traffic Victims Escape with Bruises

Two women and a girl escaped with bruises and abrasions in two traffic accidents yesterday afternoon.

Treated and released from Royal Jubilee Hospital were Mrs. Marion Hamilton, 83, of 4575 Bonnie View Place, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Winnifred Hamilton, 41, of the same address.

Both were in a car driven by the younger Mrs. Hamilton which struck a power pole at Stadacona and Fort.

Ell Ann Grommyr, 14, of 425 Hector, escaped with bruises in an accident on Interurban Road.

Seamich police said William George Norris, 135 Burnside West, swung right to avoid cyclist and knocked the Grommyr girl into a ditch. Mr. Norris drove the girl home.

Bennett Robin Hood?

Premier Bennett has been thinking of himself as B.C.'s Robin Hood ever since he fired a blazing arrow at the Kelowna bond-burning ceremony, a meeting of B.C. Power Corp. shareholders was told here last night.

Victoria lawyer M. L. Matthews, executive member of the shareholders' committee for fair expropriation terms, told an audience of more than 100 in the Orange Hall, 725 Courtney:

HURTING A LOT

"The premier's next step was to take over the B.C. Electric for the people. But he apparently forgot he was hurting a lot of little people who hold shares in the parent B.C. Power Corp."

Mr. Matthews urged every shareholder to press government MLAs for a single change in the takeover legislation which would give the courts "absolute right" to set compensation.

MORE RIGHTS

"Right now a criminal has more rights than the B.C. Power Corp.," said Mr. Matthews. "At least a criminal is entitled to a fair hearing. We cannot even get into court."

He added: "In the very early days, the king could do no wrong. But in those days they had a remedy. If they didn't like what he did they got rid of the king. Heads rolled like eggs."

USING HEADS

"I'm not advocating anything like that here... but it's time our MLAs started using their heads."

One unidentified shareholder said from the floor that B.C. Power Corp. should take a leaf from trade union books and organize some political action.

PRESENT CASE

He suggested the 8,500 shareholders in B.C. march on the legislative buildings in Victoria to present their case.

Shareholders will meet in Vancouver, Dec. 8, to ratify an interim return of capital amounting to $18.70 per share.

When legal complications have been ironed out, shareholders should collect at least $38 per share, possibly more.

'Dear,' the Lady Said And That's What It Was

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

OUR LADY AT FULFORD:

From time to time, as regular readers may recall, we print in their entirety items sent in by the Colonist's Fulford correspondent, Miss Bea Hamilton.

We rescued another one of her timeless accounts the other day, a piece entitled "Oh, Dear—Surprise!" Here it is, just as she wrote it.

"FULFORD — Mrs. Don Layard of Rainbow Road, Ganges, B.C., had a great surprise recently. Hearing a noise outside the door, she called out, 'Is that you dear?' and she opened the door.

"It was all right—a four-legged deer—and Tammy, the pet deer from the Campbell's of Beaver Point district, graciously accepted the invitation of the open door and walked in. Perfectly at home in a house, Tammy finished half a pea, stole some bread, and nibbled on a waxed gourd. Then she climbed into a spare bed for a nap.

"Highly entertained for two hours or so, Mrs. Layard phoned as SOS to the Campbells and Mrs. Campbell and her daughter Jean, who is over on a visit from Vancouver, started out to get the trust-

En route they met Alvin Best, curator of the Stanley Park zoo, also over at his parents for a visit. So the three arrived at the Layards, a good eight miles from Beaver Point, and only with her favorite candy could Mrs. Campbell entice Tammy into the van to take her home.

"It just goes to show one never knows what is going to walk into your home on an island!"

ONCE BITTEN: An enterprising Vancouver firm has apparently been using the birth notices in the Victoria newspapers to compile a mailing list.

The firm's product—birth control literature.

ITEMIZED ACCOUNT: The confusing battle of words over B.C.'s confused power picture reached the point of absurdity yesterday when we had Opposition leader Robert Strachan blasting the remarks made by Attorney General Robert Bennett who had been commenting on a speech by federal Minister Minister David Fulton... Freedom rider folk singer Guy Carawan, who has been packing them in at $400 a week at the Vancouver coffee house The Inequality, came over to Nanaimo the other day and performed for the locals for expenses only. Incidentally, John Beaman, brother of the owner of the Vancouver coffee house, will open a similar establishment in Nanaimo... Most people have heard the story of the man who hired a private detective, then, not sure he would do the job, hired another to watch the first and a third to watch the second. Well, on Cook Street, there are three automatic traffic counters within 100 feet.

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED: Since Jack and Vera Holman started out making those miniature cluster light standards as a novel souvenir of Victoria some months ago they've had orders from dozens of lands stretching from Ireland to New Zealand.

Some more enterprising city motorists have even had the cluster standards mounted on the front of their cars.

But what happened when a miniature was taken into a tourist establishment for approval here?

"What is it?" said the tourist man.

His eyes followed an outstretched arm, pointing out the window at a genuine cluster light standard on the sidewalk.

"Oh, one of them," he said, suddenly catching on.

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE: Someone has given me a card containing "quick facts" about beer and the brewing industry. Seems eight out of 10 adult Canadians drink beer for an average annual consumption of 12 gallons a head—which is less than half the amount they drink in Belgium.

Novice Skier Beware Of Wrong Stretchies

Before this winter's flock of fledgling skiers knows the difference between a snowplow turn and a herringbone climb, they should be able to distinguish between the two popular types of stretch slacks. Otherwise, a novice skier could come home with a tattered pair of slacks plus an incipient cold. Either or both could keep her away from the practice slopes the following weekend.

The two basic kinds of stretch slacks now on the market are designed for pursuits as dissimilar as zero weather skiing and fireside lounging. Active sports slacks are nearly twice as heavy and, therefore, that much warmer than leisure slacks. The outdoor type is precision-tailored for the streamlined-fit-with-plenty-of-give skilled skiers demand. The indoor, warm-weather or "apres-ski" kind is cut to flatter the figure by appearing to elongate it. These shouldn't be worn for anything more strenuous than bicycling or a game of ping-pong.

Both varieties are often referred to as "stretchies," which can be confusing to the uninitiated. When carrying a reliable manufacturer's label both should have a 35 per cent stretch imparted by their nylon stretch content of 35 per cent.

The moral when buying slacks is: "check their degree of stretch particularly at the seams but don't stop there."

Test the "body" of the fabric between thumb and fingers. Is it suited to the curling rink and slopes or to the living room and patio? Then, turn the slacks inside out. Are they a fine example of the tailor's art with their reinforced crotch, wide seams and sturdily-faced waist-band, and zipper opening? Or, are they as neatly finished as a well-made skirt?

Next, try the slacks on. If you intend to ski or curl, properly fitted stretchies should just come to the hip bone when first slipped on. Then, bend the knees and pull, lock the inner closure, stand up and zip the side opening. Examine the ankle for a smooth flat fit without turn-up on the foot and a comfortable stirrup. You will feel a slight pulling down sensation which disappears in a few moments when the slacks adjust to the body. You also may notice this when buying leisure slacks since some brands are deliberately cut a trifle short in the legs and body.

Attempting to ski or curl in leisure slacks is comparable to trying to play tennis with a ping-pong bat.

Out of Doors

Lights Help Decorations

By SUZANNE LANCASTER

The ring of the doorbell, and the muffled tread of feet on the porch is a happy sound for Christmas is the time when we especially welcome friends and relatives. And what better way to express hospitality than in the decorations for your front door?

The traditional Christmas wreath hung on the front door will always be in style. There are many new and interesting ways to use wreaths of various materials for your front door; but one of the most attractive is still the simple wreath of evergreen boughs with a bright Christmas red ribbon, hung on the centreline of the door, about three quarters of the distance up. The whole effect can be enhanced greatly by mounting an outdoor floodlight where it can be trained on the doorway to enhance its architectural lines.

WEATHERPROOF

If purchasing a floodlight for this purpose, make sure it is weatherproof, and made by a dependable Canadian manufacturer. Use floodlight kits that include a weatherproof 100- or 150-watt lamp, a holder designed to permit either ground or raised mounting, and weatherproof cord and connectors. You can choose lamps in clear glass, or in blue, green, red, yellow or pink, depending on the effect you wish to create.

A more elaborate type of door decoration might be created if you have a covered porch. In this case it is easy to place evergreen boughs under the cornice of the porch roof, and entwine them with strings of outdoor sparkle lights, to give a bright, gay appearance, or the softer glow lights, for a quieter effect. And if you are lucky enough to have two evergreen trees flanking the porch steps, or your front door, they can conceal two floodlights, one on either side, that throw their beams upward to bathe the entire entrance area in an interesting pattern of light and shadow. The trees could also be decorated with strings of outdoor sparkle (which have a clear glass) or glow lights (which have an opaque glass) to add to the beauty of the doorway.

CANDLES

Lighted candles are a lovely addition to any doorway decoration as a symbol of the Christmas spirit. Candles can be easily made from sections of pipe, plastic or mailing tubes, etc., and wired with an outdoor string and a red sparkle light bulb for the "flame." A section of plywood, cut to shape and painted, can be mounted on either side of the doorway, to make a simple frame of lighted candles.

Don't forget that your home and grounds will be viewed in the daytime as well as at night, so try to conceal as much as possible the floodlights, wires and extension cords not intended for display.

COMMON SENSE

Christmas time is also a time for common sense in using electricity outdoors. It is perfectly safe, but some simple precautions will not detract one bit from the pleasure of creating a beautiful decorative effect for your home. Be sure that your strings and sockets are made in Canada, to the safety standards of the Canadian Standards Association, expressly for outdoor use. Sockets should be all plastic, with plastic clips to ensure a firm attachment to evergreen boughs and other material. If exposed to precipitation, sockets should be positioned so that the lights will hang downwards so that water or snow won't collect in them. Connections between strings should either be taped with waterproof tape, or hung in such a way that water cannot seep in.

HAVE FUN

Don't overload the electrical circuits of your house. If a fuse blows, replace it with a new one of the same amperage, usually 15 amperes, and reduce the load by disconnecting some of the appliances and lights in the house that are on the same circuit.

Tasty Hors d'Oeuvres For Holiday Parties

It's traditional to express holiday hospitality with generous offerings of festive fare. With a tray filled with an assortment of tasty hors d'oeuvres, and a punch bowl filled with a bright and spicy punch, you'll be prepared to share the season's greetings with the many friends who drop in.

SHRIMP SWIRLS

1 pound fresh or frozen shrimp
1 envelope shrimp spice
Paprika
Watercress
Mayonnaise

Cook shrimp according to directions on shrimp spice package. Cool, drain and store, covered, in the refrigerator until ready to use. Cut small rounds from slices of bread. Toast lightly on one side. Spread untoasted side with butter or margarine. Cut large shrimp in half lengthwise. Use small ones whole. Place a half on the buttered bread. Add a dab of mayonnaise. Sprinkle with paprika. Decorate with sprigs of watercress. Approximately 2 dozen medium shrimp in a pound.

TUNA CHRISTMAS TREES

1 teaspoon dill seed.
1 teaspoon lemon juice.
1 cup mayonnaise.
1 can (6 or 7 oz.) tuna.
1 hard-boiled egg, finely chopped.
2 tablespoons finely chopped celery.
Thinly sliced bread.
Butter or margarine.
1 can (4 or 4-oz.) pimiento.
1 green pepper.

Combine dill seed, lemon juice, and mayonnaise in a mixing bowl. Add drained, flaked tuna with egg and celery to mayonnaise. Mix well.

Cut crusts from slices of light or dark bread. Cut each slice into 4-triangular pieces. Spread with butter and a generous layer of tuna mixture. Use a strip of tuna mixture for tree trunk, place at midpoint at base of triangle. Cut pimiento into 1/4-inch wide strips. Space 3 strips above trunk in shape of a tree. 1 1/2 cups filling makes 2 dozen hors d'oeuvres. Or garnish this way: Spread tuna mixture on buttered rounds of bread. Top with a round slice of pitted ripe olive. Thread a thin strip of pimiento through hole in olive slice.

CHEESE AND CHIPPED BEEF BALLS

One tablespoon instant minced onion, 2 teaspoons prepared mustard, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 2 packages (4-oz.) cream cheese, 1/4 pound chipped beef, finely minced. Measure minced onion into a bowl. Add the mustard and mayonnaise. Blend in the cream cheese (room temperature) and mix well. Add 1/2 cup of the finely minced chipped beef. Chill mixture. Form teaspoonful into a ball. Roll balls in remaining chipped beef completely covering them. Chill until ready to serve. Serve on wooden picks stuck in a large grapefruit. Approximately 1 1/2 dozen balls.

Carrot Pudding Popular

Are you making your steamed Christmas puddings now to give them time to mellow? One recipe that never loses its popularity because it's so light and moist is Carrot Pudding.

CARROT PUDDING

One cup grated raw carrot, 1 cup grated apple, 1 cup grated raw potato, 1 egg, beaten, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 1/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon allspice, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1/2 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup grated suet (or 1/2 cup butter), 1 1/4 cups raisins, halved, 1/2 cup chopped nuts (optional).

Grate apple, carrot and potato. Combine with beaten egg and vanilla. Sift flour with salt, soda, spices and sugar. Add suet or cut in butter. Add raisins and nuts and combine with first mixture. Place in well-greased 1 1/2 quart pudding mold. Cover with double thickness of waxed paper or aluminum foil, tie securely with string. Steam 3 hours in closely-covered steamer. Cool thoroughly and store until needed in cool dry place. To reheat for serving, steam one hour.

Ringstad-Clarke Wedding Ceremony

Gowns of gold, moss, brown and red peau de soie were worn by four attendants. They formed an attractive complement to the bride's ensemble worn by Miss Margaret Rose Clarke for her marriage recently to Mr. Alexander Condon Ringstad in St. Luke's Anglican Church.

The charming bride, only daughter of Mrs. Edmund Clarke, 3153 Qu'Appelle Street, wore a gown of white faille fashioned with empire line, three-quarter sleeves and scalloped neckline. The hoop skirt was trimmed with lace and pearls, and extended to a chapel train. Pearls and lace were in the dainty coronet which held her three-tier veil of illusion net. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of carnations and gardenias surrounded by net.

Mrs. David Ringstad, was matron of honor, Misses Gloria Nyberg and Mary-Helen Ringstad, bridesmaids, and Mrs. Donald Fouracre, bridesmaid in bell-skirted dresses with butterfly bows at back. They wore head bangles and carried fan bouquets of chrysanthemums.

The groom, eldest son of Mrs. Helen C. Ringstad, 2795 Beach Drive, had Mr. David Ringstad as best man. Ushers were Mr. Sandy Green, Mr. Phillip Wamba and Mr. Peter Napper.

A reception followed at the groom's home, 2795 Beach Drive.

For her going-away outfit, the bride wore a moss green suit with pale rose-mauve feather cloche, green and black accessories and a white gardenia corsage.

After a honeymoon trip to Harrison Hot Springs, Mr. and Mrs. Ringstad will live at 1550 Begbie Street.

The final enrolment of St. Patrick's No. 10 Victoria Girl Guides was held recently in the auditorium of St. Patrick's School when Commissioner Mrs. W. S. Emmerton presided at the ceremonies. Mrs. J. Moreau presented CWL badges to each girl, and Father M. Costello gave the new guides his blessing. Also present were District Commissioner Mrs. E. A. Hobbs, Captain Mrs. V. G. Stuart and Lieutenants Mrs. A. L. Verheul and Mrs. E. J. Whalley. Pictured are, left to right from back row, Cherry Lundy, Elaine Anderson, Carol-Ann Montgomery, Maryke Hermans, Maureen Cody, Kathy Weicker, Barbara Larson, Thea Herfst and Linda Weicker.

St. Alban's Wedding Ceremony

Miss Marilyn Irene Mottishaw and Mr. Albert Wayne Finlay exchanged nuptial vows and rings at a ceremony performed by Rev. F. W. Hayes in St. Alban's Church.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Mottishaw, 524 Niagara Street, was given in marriage by her father.

The bride's ensemble was a short white dress with matching jacket, veiled white whimsy hat and colonial bouquet of pink rosebuds.

Mrs. M. Plachner attended her sister and wore a gold sheath dress with matching accessories. Her colonial bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums was centred with yellow roses.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Finlay, Greenwood, N.S., had Mr. Gary Martens as best man.

At the reception held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. G. F. Thomas proposed the toast to the bride.

Carpet Beetle Exposed

OTTAWA—In the suburban homes of Vancouver Island and the lower mainland of British Columbia, the varied carpet beetle is a major pest of household fabrics.

Housewives who have been blaming the damage on the clothes moth are assured by entomologist Peter Zuk of the Canada Department of Agriculture's research station at Vancouver that they have been maligning the wrong pest.

True, the clothes moth larva usually chews off the surface of soiled materials. But the carpet beetle eats holes in woollens, rugs, silks, furs and hair materials—clean or soiled.

The females lay eggs on fabrics that their larvae can feed on. These larvae, which can be seen crawling across the wall or floor, are yellowish-brown and covered with brown bristles thickly tufted at the hind end. They are about one-quarter inch long. This pest adds dog biscuits, the glue in furniture and whole wheat flour to its diet when the occasion offers, and is found in bird nests, spider webs and the lint that gathers under the stove and around cold air ducts.

Mr. Zuk recommends putting away woollens in tight containers with a repellent such as paradichlorobenzene, and applying poison, such as chlordane, on the baseboards—taking care to follow the directions. He suggests frequent use of the vacuum cleaner to keep the carpet beetle from becoming established, and as a further precaution—bird nests should not be brought into the home.

Be Competitive Fishermen Told

By IAN SPENCER

British Columbia fishermen should consider building larger, deeper vessels in order to become more competitive with Japanese and Russian fishing fleets ranging the Pacific, Esquimalt-Saanich MP George Chatterton said last night.

Chatterton Urges Big Boats

Mr. Chatterton said he will be presenting a report on the changes in current federal subsidies to stimulate shipbuilding and fishing to help west coast fishermen branch out into new fields in order to make the local industry more efficient.

B.C. IGNORED?

He was commenting on statements by a spokesman for Mackay-Cornwall Ltd. shipyard blasting "discriminatory legislation" covering federal subsidies. Capt. G. A. Veres said subsidies were designed by Ottawa to assist the Mar-time and ignored B.C. fishermen. Chatterton pointed out the subsidies were in fact designed to stimulate shipbuilding in Canada and covered steel rather than wooden-hulled vessels which make up the bulk of B.C. fishing fleets.

MAIN REASON

He said the Maritime benefit mainly because Atlantic fishing fleets contain larger, deeper vessels. Mr. Chatterton said the federal government could be encouraged to meet local needs, that B.C. fishermen could be encouraged to replace their present vessels with "more efficient" craft.

Tax Failure Costs $200

A Langford man was fined $200 in Chabwood police court yesterday for failing to file a 1960 income tax return. The minimum fine was set out to Carl G. Ball, 510 Atchuk, by Magistrate A. L. Thomas. Maximum fine for such an offence is $10,000.

26th Annual... Pete Proves He's Trier With Trees

VANCOUVER (CP)—"Granite Vancouver Island Christmas trees" in Saanich, Calif., Pete Sopov hopes so. Pete started out with 900 trees Tuesday on the first leg of a 1,000-mile trip that would have put him in Sacramento Monday. But his truck collided with a car near here and Pete's trees ended up in a muddy ravine. Despite the setback, another tree, and still hope to cash in on the Sacramento market.

CERTIFIED 8-YEAR-OLD CANADIAN WHISKY

Original... because it was the first certified 8-year-old Canadian whisky on the market. Fine... because it is aged for 8 years in small oak casks for that fine, full flavour that only comes with age. Canadian... because it is made for Canadians and by Canadians—a whisky of truly outstanding quality.

For Prairie Farmers

$25,000,000 By Christmas

SASKATOON (CP)—Prairie farmers are to receive by Christmas $25,000,000 of an expected $60,000,000 from Prairie Farm Assistance Act payments during the current crop year, Federal Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton said yesterday.

In an address to the local branch of the Agricultural Institute of Canada Hamilton said "It is clearly evident advances in technology now permit production of quantities of food in excess of what consumers will buy at a price which is profitable to producers."

In order to meet this situation, Hamilton said, the federal department of agriculture was now shifting emphasis in research from the technical to the economic field.

SASKATOON (CP)—Expanded export trade through Canadian initiative for an Atlantic trading community and low-interest federal loans for a rural development program bringing small-scale industries to farming areas were presented yesterday by Lester Pearson as solutions to Canada's agricultural problems.

The Liberal party leader said these steps as going a long way towards meeting the cost-price squeeze confronting farmers, the chronic condition of technologically-improved farm production outstripping domestic demand, and the movement of people away from farm areas.

Pearson also criticized the administration's "niggling attitude" towards the European Common Market, and dismissed as "nonsense" the proposal for a western hemisphere free trade area.

Wenner-Gren Plans Won't Be Dropped

VANCOUVER (CP)—President Bernard Gore of the Wenner-Gren British Columbia Development Company says he won't drop plans for mining the Rocky Mountain Trench and building pulp mills in northern B.C.

"SATISFIED" Mr. Gore, who has just returned to Vancouver from Prince George where he met engineers conducting mineral

Now It's Instant Fishcakes

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal researchers have come up with another boon for busy housewives: Instant fishcakes.

A blend of cooked fish and potatoes is dehydrated to fine flakes. It can be reconstituted, heated and served in minutes.

Process was developed by the agriculture department's plant research institute.

explorations, said in an interview he is satisfied with the progress in the work so far.

$1,500,000 SPENT Mr. Gore said his company has spent $1,500,000 on the Pacific Northern Railway and "it is not my habit to waste money."

"I don't suppose any company here has spent the millions on mineral exploration in this country that we have, and all that money is still here."

Mr. Gore said he had planned to attend Swedish financier Axel Wenner-Gren's funeral in Stockholm Friday but will not be able to make it because of pressure of business.

...and everything nice!

That, as the saying goes, is what little girls are made of.

Like little girls, Zee is made of nice things too...soft, soft paper and pretty pastel colors.

Aqua, pink, yellow and white paper, carefully interwoven for strength then perforated to separate easily.

ANOTHER QUALITY PAPER PRODUCT OF CROWN ZELLERBACH CANADA LIMITED

A totally new Mercury size...

Meteor has arrived!

A foot longer than compacts, a foot shorter than big cars, the new sized Mercury Meteor joins the big Monterey and the compact Comet to meet your driving needs to a dollar. Its name is not new. Everything else is! From totally new unitized body to every dimension.

If you want a bigger car than a compact, with compact economy and a big car ride, Meteor is sized for you in every way.

Meteor's wheelbase is a long 116½ inches, turns washboard roads into real smoothies. But it's also inches shorter than a big car. Lets you slip into parking spots you used to pass by.

Also new in a lively way are Meteor's new engines. There's a 145 horsepower V-8 engineered for plenty of pep and economy too. If a Six is your size, Meteor's 101 horsepower Big Six fills the bill. And cuts your gas bill at the same time.

Meteor's beautiful new interior seats six without a shoehorn. Luggage is welcome. Should be. The trunk is 31.6 cubic feet huge. And this is also the quietest Meteor in history. And—the most service-free.

In Meteor, chassis lubrications are up to 30,000 miles apart. Oil change interval is up to 6,000 miles. Brakes adjust themselves. Aluminized muffler lasts up to three times as long as ordinary mufflers. And the new 2 year or 30,000 mile radiator coolant is factory installed.

Meteor's name is not new. But its size and everything else is. Size it up for yourself in two series: Meteor and Meteor Custom. The totally new Mercury Meteor, one of the Ford Family of Fine Cars—built in Canada.

Mercury—now in Canada's three most-wanted sizes!

- 1 COMET—the Compact Mercury...smartly ahead of the compact crowd. Still only looks expensive!
- 2 METEOR—The New Size Mercury...totally new except for its famous Canadian name.
- 3 MONTEREY—The Big Mercury...the big brand of luxury for the man who appreciates a big car.

Certain items illustrated as optional at extra cost.

$13,500 for Gallery

A cheque for $13,500 will be presented to Greater Victoria Art Gallery directors by the B.C. Centennial Trust Committee at a ceremony at the gallery at 2 p.m. today.

The amount represents funds left over from the 1958 Greater Victoria centennial projects. At that time construction of the art gallery wing was the principal project undertaken.

The money will go into the gallery's endowment fund, to be used for operating expenses.

Menzies 'Certainty' In Australian Poll

MELBOURNE (CP) — All seats will be contested in the Dec. 9 Australian general elections but an air of inevitability persists over the outcome.

The campaign has been waged in hired halls and along highways and by-ways—and on television—but the feeling has long been fairly generally held that the return of the Liberal-Country party government is inevitable.

RECORD MAJORITY

This would carry another inevitability—that of Robert Gordon Menzies again as prime minister, an office he has held for 12 years.

In the 23rd Parliament his Liberal-Country party held 77 of the 122 voting seats, a record majority of 32 in the House of Representatives, and a slender majority in the Senate.

NEED 62 SEATS

To oust the government, the Australian Labor party must retain all the 45 representatives it held in the old Parliament and win an additional 17 seats from the Liberal-Country party.

No one is saying that the days of political upsets are over, but the Labor opposition still is bothered by a right-wing splinter group, as it was in the 1958 election. This is the Democratic Labor party, which split with the main body over its alleged "softness" on Communism.

Ottawa Steps Up Hunt for Talent

By JACK VAN DUSEN

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government, Canada's biggest employer, has added a bit of dash to the program of recruiting top-notch help from the annual crop of university graduates.

New color and bright layouts enliven the brochures going out to universities this year to attract 1962 graduates.

URGE RECOGNIZED

They tell of the many and varied career opportunities in the federal civil service, and recognize the urge of today's student to make money.

"Senior positions pay up to $18,000 a year or more," says one booklet. "Your progress will depend on your ability."

Lumberjacks Tackle Huge Salvage Task

MANICOUAGAN, Que.

(CP)—Two thousand lumberjacks are working against time, trying to salvage as much pulpwood as possible from 800 square miles of forests to be flooded within 10 years by a hydro project in northeastern Quebec.

EUROPEAN MARKET

Since the program started last summer, 172,000 cords of black spruce have been cut and made ready for marketing in Europe.

During an inspection trip, Lands and Forests Minister Bona Arseneault said the salvage program on the Manicouagan and Aux Outardes watersheds is proving financially successful for the government. A contract was signed for the sale of 1,000,000 cords of pulpwood to European mills.

There would be no difficulty

HAZELTON — Body of 21-year-old Solomon Halkinsqu of Hazelton, who had been missing three days on a hunting trip, was found in a frozen lake near this northern village. Investigation showed the hunter had broken through the ice while trying to cross the lake.

NAIROBI — A Kenya constitutional conference will open in London, Feb. 14, two weeks after a deadline set by nationalist leader Jomo Kenyatta for independence.

Market Issue

Keep to Right Rule Would Jolt Britons

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP)—British motorists are due for a special headache if Britain joins the European Common Market—especially if the country is linked to the Continent by a Channel tunnel or bridge.

For then a long-shirked question is bound to arise: How much longer can Britons keep left on the road while all Europe except Sweden drives on the right?

COST ENORMOUS

The government is already anticipating the problems that would be involved in a change. Transport Minister Marples recently announced that all new motorways and trunk roads are being designed to carry traffic on either side, "in case this country decides to change over to the right."

But the cost of altering the existing set-up would be enormous. Road signs, cambers and gradients, traffic circles, automobile design—all would need changing.

Buses that now have their passenger entry on the left would have to be provided with right-hand doors.

The total bill would amount to an estimated £30,000,000.

Nor can the problems be counted only in terms of cash. Every British driver and pedestrian would need re-educating in the new rule of the road—a huge psychological hurdle.

FROM HIGHWAYMEN?

Nobody knows exactly at what signpost in history Britain swung left while European countries took the right-hand turn.

An official of the Royal Automobile Club says the "keep left" rule might have originated from the hazards of travelling in the days of highwaymen.

Record for Canada

Tourists—the Most

OTTAWA (CP) — Advance 1961 estimates compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics predict more than 30,000,000 U.S. tourists will have visited Canada by the year's end and will have spent more than $400,000,000.

The figures, representing new highs for Canada's booming tourist industry, were given Tuesday to the federal-provincial tourist conference.

ALONG HIGHWAY

In other business the conference learned that 56 campsites and picnic grounds are now going up along the Trans-Canada Highway.

Under a program adopted four years ago the federal and provincial governments agreed to share the cost of building a chain of 58 campsites and 106 picnic areas across Canada at intervals of 100 and 50 miles respectively.

Recreation and Conservation

Minister Earle C. Westwood of British Columbia moved for a federal and provincial program to conserve wildlife in Canada.

The meeting agreed to recommend such a program to the federal-provincial wildlife conference to be held in Ottawa in April of 1962.

Garden Notes

Frame Must Be Solid

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

It often happens that when moving from one house to another, if the previous occupant was a keen gardener, quite often an excellent cold-frame is found tucked away in a sunny corner of the new garden. Its new owner soon learns to make good use of the frame by starting seeds in the spring, but this useful garden accessory will usually stand idle through the winter months, either because the owner doesn't know what to do with it or because he hasn't learned how to manage a cold-frame in winter.

For cold weather work, such a frame should be of good construction, solid and sound and in good repair. A flimsy, ramshackle affair with broken panes of glass, cracked and filthy with dirt and with much of the paint flaking off, is no use at all in midwinter.

These fancy, patented, ready-made frames with glass sides aren't so hot, for glass walls do not retain enough warmth. Plastic "lights" work quite well, although I still have a preference for glass, but for good results, the sides and back should be of some solid material. Brick, concrete and heavy wood are all good and I have even seen a cosy and efficient frame built from stacked squares of sod.

A coldframe is cold only in the sense that it is not heated artificially and all its cosiness and warmth must be secured from the rays of the sun. For this reason, the frame must be sited in a sunny place, preferably with a bit of shelter of some kind from the prevailing winds, and the glass covers or "lights" must be kept scrupulously clean in order to admit the maximum amount of sunlight.

During the sunlit hours, the air and soil within the frame are warmed and every effort should be made to retain this heat through the night, preventing its loss to the outside air. Lights must be tight and well-fitting and free from cracked and broken panes. The walls are best insulated by banking up with sawdust, straw, leaves or even soil. Warmth can be prevented from oozing away downward through the soil by putting down a two-inch layer of sand or fine gravel plus a three-inch layer of chopped straw before adding the soil or ashes which will constitute the floor of the frame.

The glass lights or covering serve a useful purpose only during the daylight hours and at night the greatest loss of warmth will be through that same glass. For this reason, it is always a good idea to cover the glass at sundown in frosty weather with a bit of old carpet, a blanket, worn-out comforter or some such insulating material. A neighbor of mine stuffs old fertilizer sacks with excelsior or wood shavings and uses these for covering the glass at night. Any such covering must come off the next morning or the plants within will become "drawn" for lack of light.

With a floor of coarse ashes or crushed cinders, such a frame can be employed for overwintering pots or cuttings of the hardier bedding plants such as pansies, violas, marguerites and the like, as well as boxes of autumn-sown snapdragons, onions and lettuce. If part of the frame can be darkened, it will be most useful too for storing pots of flowering bulbs during their cold rooting period.

Filled with a good sandy loam soil, the frame can be planted up with vegetable seedlings such as Brussels sprouts and cauliflower. It could be devoted entirely to producing a winter crop of sweet violets or for wintering chrysanthemum stools. Some varieties of lettuce can be sown directly in the frame—the variety Cornell 456 does surprisingly well even under such short-day conditions—together with carrots, radish and the little white table turnips.

Speed Up That Quiet Life!

PARIS—We've had a very busy week this week, so much so we haven't had a chance to do much work. What happened was that the American magazine "Look" said they would like to do a picture story on us, on how we live and work in Paris, and naturally we were delighted. "Look" has at least eight million readers, not counting people who pick it up in barber shops and beauty parlors and our mother-in-law, who is a subscriber, so it was hard to say no. "Look" sent over from the United States two of their top men, Jack Star, a reporter, and Douglas Kirkland, a photographer, and we agreed they could follow us around night and day taking pictures and interviewing us while we interviewed other people. At the time we didn't realize how confusing it could be.

The truth is we live a very quiet life in Paris. In the morning we come in and read the mail, dictate a few letters, play gin rummy with a fellow down the hall, then we go to lunch, then we take a nap, then we write an article, then we go home and read "France Soir" to find out what happened in Paris that day. There is rarely any variance in this schedule, but obviously this wasn't what "Look" had in mind, so we had to change our entire schedule.

For a starter we had to impress the "Look" man with the fact that we really lead a glamorous life. The first thing we did was go out to a movie studio in Paris to say hello to Henry Fonda, Edmund O'Brien, and Darryl Zanuck who were making "The Longest Day."

It was too difficult to explain what we were doing with a writer and a photographer, so we didn't say anything other than to introduce them as members of the "Look" staff.

But as we talked to Mr. Fonda and Mr. O'Brien, the photographer started taking pictures of us with the stars' back to the camera and Mr. Star was taking notes of the questions we were asking the actors instead of their answers.

Finally we told the stars what was going on. The press agent on the film immediately rallied his photographer in to take pictures of Mr. Kirkland taking pictures of us with the stars' back to the camera and Mr. Fonda, Mr. O'Brien, and Mr. Zanuck.

On the way out of the studio we had the good fortune to bump into Gene Kelly, but he became nervous, so we had to let go of his hand which we were shaking vigorously so Mr. Kirkland could see we really knew important people in Paris.

Next day we had a more serious problem: We still had nine days to go.

We called up Irvin Shaw, the writer, and asked him if he would come to lunch so we could be photographed together.

"I'd like to," he replied, "but I'm playing tennis."

"Well, could they take a picture of us playing tennis together?" we asked.

Mr. Shaw said: "You don't play tennis."

"I don't do anything they're taking pictures of me doing," we cried.

But Mr. Shaw said he had an important game and besides he photographed very badly from the back.

So we had our picture taken with an industrial designer from Lausanne and Bing Crosby's agent, in the Hotel George V where we were waiting to be photographed with anyone who came in. Tuesday night we had our picture taken with a stripteaser, several students dancing the Twist, and Raymond Oliver cooking at the Grand Vefour.

Now we have to worry about the next.

Tracy Just Won't Fly

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Spencer Tracy won't fly if he can possibly help it. And he wouldn't fly from Nuremberg to Berlin after completing his scenes on location for "Judgment at Nuremberg." So Katharine Hepburn and her father waited for him in Berlin after their visit to the set. Then they all drove to France.

Stanley Kramer would like Spencer Tracy to attend the Berlin "Judgment at Nuremberg" premiere in mid-December with the rest of the cast and the press junketeers. But Tracy's flying phobia may be a problem. He could win the Oscar for the best performance of the year.

James Mason, who co-stars with John Mills in the film, "Tara Tahiti," says of Tahiti: "It's a very easy, immaterial way of life—a wonderful place to readjust from the madcap scamper."

Sir Alec Guinness is looking for a house to buy in Ireland, which is his idea of getting away from it all. With his HMS Defiant almost finished, Sir Alec is making plans for a month of fishing in the west of Eire.

There is very little studio space for films in Vienna. It is now the TV filming capital of Europe.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flesch

It takes about three minutes to read this column, but I bet it'll take you considerably longer to think about it today—that is, if you really try to figure out the meaning of the dozen or so quotations you'll find below.

They're from a new book, "Flight of White Crows" by John Berry (Macmillan), a young American who last year published a successful novel called "Krishna Fluting." He writes about India and everything he writes has a mystical, metaphysical touch.

There are 11 stories in his new book, followed by a collection of brief aphorisms and paradoxes, entitled "The Pious Puzzles of Ananda Mahidev." These, to my mind, form the real meat of what Mr. Berry has to say.

Be Baffled By

"Virtue is in greatest danger when it begins to bring good results."
"Madness is the feeling that we cannot love until we have time. We shall never have time until we love."
"The confession of venial sins may fill one with pride."

"To be real, we must use our imagination."
"Truth is wherever you decide to face it."
"Love is never difficult. When we think it is, we are loving ourselves too passionately."
"The bird of paradise alights only upon the hand that does not grasp."
"God speaks any time, and the most likely time is the most unlikely, and the most unlikely is the most likely."

Pardon First

"Pardon your neighbor before you forget the offense."
"The conservative man, the man who feels most secure, is in the greatest danger of all: the man who runs no risk runs the supreme risk."
"Any motion that leads to the baffling, the bankrupting, and the breaking of the individual ego may be a step toward wisdom... Any sickness will do."

"To learn that one is not particularly bright, not uncommonly gifted with imagination, unwise, wild, not very kind, impatient, easily bored, rather blind, not especially sensitive, unworthy of prolonged attention—to learn these things about oneself is to be at a great advantage in terms of humility. Great pride is then possible." Now let Mr. Berry's disturbing phrases reverberate in your mind.

Island Indians Mourn Chief, Wife

By JOHN SHAW
Colonist Staff Writer

TOFINO — Chief Francis Frank and his wife Rachel, Indians of Opishat, three miles from this west coast settlement, died within a few hours of each other Tuesday morning.

Cause of death, according to Dr. H. R. McDermid of Tofino, the only doctor in this area of 3,000 souls extending from Tahsis to Ucluelet, was "botulinus" poison.

They had eaten a concoction of salmon roe, fermented, something of a delicacy among the coast Indians, and it apparently was bad. A sample has been sent to Vancouver for analysis.

RCMP Cpl. William Steen, who arrived Wednesday from Ucluelet to investigate, had no comment on the tragedy which has shocked the Indian community.

A third poison victim, Mrs. Nellie Frank, daughter-in-law of the dead couple, was saved when an anti-toxin was rushed in from Vancouver by air and road.

"The anti-toxin was the only available supply west of Toronto," Dr. McDermid said. It was brought in by highway department car over the rough 85-mile road from Alberni to Tofino.

Father Thomas Lobsinger, who has been three years with the Opishat people and who conducted the mass for the chief and his wife in the weatherbeaten shingle church in the Indian settlement, said:

"Chief Frank was a highly respected member of this community of 300. They make a sort of cheese out of the fermented salmon eggs, and I suppose in some way it was contaminated. It is a bit of a mystery that they should have died of it. I suppose they reached the hospital too late."

Alec and Joseph Frank, sons of the dead chief, discovered the elderly couple stricken in their home Sunday. There is no positive information as to what date they ate the poisoned food.

They brought them to Tofino in their fishboat, Native Princess, Monday afternoon.

Wednesday afternoon Indians came from as far away as Ahousat, 15 miles to the north, to attend the mass and burial in the rain-drenched little cemetery just outside Opishat village.

The Franks are a large family, and there were a score of weeping and lamenting relatives among the 200 persons who crowded the church and stood bareheaded by the grave.

Earlier, the sons of the chief and a half-dozen friends had come to Tofino Hospital for the bodies. They were carried to the Native Princess on stretchers, wrapped in white linen and taken across an inlet to the village. The villagers met the boat and followed in sad procession.

Colonist photographer Ted Harris and I reached Opishat by open boat, through a fierce rain squall and choppy sea.

We followed the funeral procession from the church to the cemetery in the weeping cedar woods. While Father Thomas sprinkled holy water and went through the moving ritual of prayer, Indian men and women wept openly—it was a touching scene.

The smoke was still rising from the bonfire the Indians had made of the chief's and his wife's belongings when we left the village.

Better Rescue Planned

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wide-ranging plans have been discussed to expand search and rescue operations in British Columbia, with planned use of new types of air and sea craft to improve speed and efficiency.

Representatives of the RCAF, Royal Canadian Navy, the U.S. Coast Guard, department of transport marine services representatives and RCMP and other government agencies discussed the plan at a meeting Tuesday.

NEW EQUIPMENT

Air-sea rescue division of the RCAF spokesman said new equipment will include two weather ships, to cost $6,000,000 each, an Albatross amphibian aircraft, an amphibious helicopter, a ship-to-shore communications circuit and three U.S. Coast Guard-type cutters.

The weather ships will replace wartime frigates now stationed in the Pacific. A spokesman said they will be the most modern of their type in the world.

COLUMBIA PACT CLOSE DESPITE SMOKESCREEN

Both Governments Can Claim Victory

By TERRY HAMMOND

Justice Minister Davie Fulton has set the stage for a B.C.-Ottawa Columbia River pact which could bring about an early start on the $458,000,000 project.

Speech Angers Udall

WASHINGTON (CP)—U.S. Interior Secretary Stewart Udall was reported yesterday to be infuriated by a blunt attack launched Tuesday by Canadian Justice Minister Davie Fulton in a Columbia River power speech.

Udall conferred yesterday with U.S. Ambassador to Canada Livingston Merchant who, it was indicated, may be trying to head off a Canada-U.S. storm on the Columbia controversy.

'DRIVE ABETTED'

Mr. Fulton inferred in his speech that Udall was abetting a B.C. propaganda drive to obtain Ottawa approval for sale of Columbia power to the U.S. It appeared likely Ambassador Merchant may have advised Udall against any sharp retort to Fulton and there was some indication Merchant, who later returned to Ottawa, may explore the possibility of bringing Udall and Fulton together.

In Victoria last night Attorney General Robert Bonner said "we have just witnessed another and chapter in Ottawa's ability to give needless offense to others."

"INSULT TO U.S." "The low state of Canada's reputation in the United Kingdom, achieved over seven years of bumbling, has now been equalled overnight in Washington through Mr. Fulton's capacity to needlessly insult a responsible member of the U.S. government."

Misunderstanding By Fulton Charged

By PETER BRUTON

Federal Justice Minister Davie Fulton has demonstrated a complete lack of understanding of Columbia River development problems, B.C. Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston charged yesterday.

"It is a tragedy for the Canadian policy to be enacted on a complete misunderstanding," said Mr. Williston, commenting on a speech by Mr. Fulton at Prince George Tuesday.

"NOT RECOGNIZED" The provincial minister said Mr. Fulton's attack on B.C.'s plan to sell Columbia power in the U.S. showed no recognition of the practical difficulties of carrying out the terms of the treaty.

There was no market in the U.S. for short-term "dump" power but there was a profitable, long-range market which would allow the financing of the entire project, said Mr. Williston.

Mr. Fulton knew full well that the sale of surplus downstream benefits was provided

Through the smoke and fire of Mr. Fulton's Tuesday night Prince George policy speech veteran Columbia observers see a chink of light through which is glimpsed an early settlement of the burning federal-provincial controversy over the fate of B.C.'s downstream benefits.

VICTORIES CLAIMED

Likelihood that settlement will be reached along a course left open by the justice minister is considered greatly enhanced by the fact that both the federal and provincial governments could claim major victories for their points of view.

DOOR CLOSED

Close study of the prepared text of Mr. Fulton's stormy Tuesday speech discloses that he specifically closed the door against what he repeatedly referred to as "long-term" sale of downstream benefits to the U.S. At one point in his speech he inferred that by long-term he meant 20 to 30 years.

Mr. Fulton's thinly-veiled message was that the federal government is prepared to approve "short-term" sale of B.C.'s Columbia power in the U.S.

STORY DENIED

This was indicated earlier Tuesday in a bylined Canadian Press dispatch which followed an interview with Mr. Fulton aboard a Prince George-bound airliner.

The story, which Mr. Fulton later denied categorically, said the federal government might allow sale of some B.C. Columbia power for up to 20 years. Yesterday, the Colonist learned that during Mr. Fulton's interview with the Canadian Press reporter he had been under the impression his remarks were "off the record."

'NOT WAVING'

It was believed here yesterday that the denial was issued in order to dispel the impression that the federal government is wavering on its policy.

Angry Zorin Marches From Dinner

NEW YORK (UPI)—Valerian Zorin, Soviet ambassador to the United Nations, last night stalked from a dinner honoring U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, angered over remarks made in a speech by Vice-President Lyndon Johnson.

Zorin later told a reporter: "If the host does not respect the guest, then the guest cannot respect such a host."

Johnson was in the midst of a speech in which he took the Communists to task, pointing out that American successes around the world have far surpassed those of the Communists.

Johnson had been speaking about five minutes and had reached a point where he described the successes of democracy in Japan, Greece and Turkey.

Bolt of Lightning Hurls Man 30 Feet

TOFINO—A 58-year-old mechanic was hurled 30 feet by a lightning bolt last night as one of the worst storms in recent years lashed the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Olivier Sberaldi of Tofino was left dazed and shaken after lightning knocked a transformer off a power pole 100 yards away and dashed him to the ground a split second later.

The toll of storm damage in the Tofino-Ucluelet area was still mounting at press time today.

'Brand Cigaretts as Menace'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Four doctors, all former smokers, said here public agencies should declare cigarette a health menace.

The doctors appeared before a District of Columbia Medical Society meeting. They agreed there was no longer any room for doubt about statistical and clinical findings linking cigarette smoking with lung cancer and certain forms of circulatory disease.

Dr. Michael Shimkin, cancer specialist of the National Institutes of Health, said:

"We're speaking of apnoea, the swelling of apnoea which now is a capital offense."

Shimkin said cigarette should be regarded as a major "environmental poison" adding: "Cigarette advertising equates smoking cigarettes with bravery, sexual virility and social status, and in view of this campaign it is little wonder that so many youngsters smoke. We must change this picture. We have an obligation to our children."

THE PRIME MINISTER
... no subservience

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker last night defined the Conservative government's relations with the United Kingdom.

"The Conservative party," he said, "stands for co-operation with Britain without subservience."

"It stands for a strong Commonwealth in which consultation will take place on matters of commonwealth interest, in which there will be full regard by each of the nations for the effect of its policies on the other members."

The prime minister's statement climaxed a review of the current London-Ottawa difficulties over Britain's proposal to join the European Common Market.

Diefenbaker claimed credit for the representations which he had made concerning the interests of Canada and other Commonwealth nations. He said he had been responsible for the paragraph in the now published Heath report on negotiations which declared that:

"Britain has told the six Common Market countries that it will not join them if it means grave loss or ruin for some of its Commonwealth partners. Britain made it clear that the terms of entry must include special arrangements to insure the continued agricultural exports of Canada, New Zealand and Australia."

"Some 75 per cent of our exports to the United Kingdom would be affected by Common Market tariffs," Diefenbaker said.

Durum and other wheat and flour exports, which now enjoy free entry, ultimately would face a duty of 20 per cent.

Daily Colonist Obtains Complete Heath Report

The Colonist has obtained a copy of the now famous speech made to Common Market members by Britain's Lord Privy Seal, Edward Heath. This was the speech Canada wanted in detail and was refused. After the speech was leaked to the United States, the British government released it to all Commonwealth governments.

The complete text of this important and far-reaching speech appears today on Page 5.

That 'Split' with U.K. Didn't Exist—Minister

SASKATOON (CP)—A Canada would have no right to "split" between Canada and Britain over United Kingdom membership in the European Common Market never has existed, Alvin Hamilton, federal agriculture minister, said Wednesday.

Mr. Hamilton, replying to questions following his address to students at the University of Saskatchewan, said:

"I have never seen a split between Canada and Britain over United Kingdom membership in the European Common Market. It has never existed. Canada has always been a member of the Commonwealth and has always been a member of the Commonwealth."

He said Britain had asked Canada for an opinion on the question and the opinion had been expressed after Canada made an estimate of the effects on Canadian trade if Britain joined the Common Market.

UN Driver Found Shot in Back, Major Missing

ELISABETHVILLE (Reuters)—The body of an Indian United Nations driver who was shot in the back was discovered here Wednesday in the wake of the beating up Tuesday night of two UN officials by troops of secessionist Katanga province.

George Ivan Smith of Australia, acting UN chief here, sent a protest note to Katanga leaders after the body was found by a Swedish UN patrol wrapped in a Katanga army sheet near President Moise Tshombe's home.

Smith said the driver was "shot in the back at fairly close range."

UN patrols meanwhile searched for an Indian major, Arjeet Singh, who was being driven by the slain soldier.

Mrs. Baker's Battle Becomes Epic

By TED FULFORD

Buried among the chronicles of human misery in the city's welfare office is a case file which begins with this entry:

"Baker, Mrs. C. V. Husband collapsed and died at work. She has seven children and expects another. There is no money in the bank, no insurance and the house is not paid for. She has applied for social assistance."

The story of Mrs. Baker's battle for the survival of her family and herself since that terrible entry was written back in 1950, is one that Victorians should know. I listened to this intense little woman's story last night as she helped get the younger children ready for bed.

It was evident that I was listening to a heroine. "When they told me my husband was dead," she said, "I nearly died, too. It was the children, I think, who kept me going."

The wound inflicted by the tragedy is still raw. When she mentions her husband, her eyes waver for an instant and she seems almost to forget what she intends to say.

Her family's war against the physical and mental erosion of want has been a minor epic in the neighborhood. Though her face shows the lines of a thousand plucked budgets, her youngsters refect a security which any family might envy.

In some mysterious way, the little woman and her house full of bawling, happy youngsters has converted poverty into great wealth and the less of her husband has become the catalyst drawing her family together.

As she spoke, Mrs. Baker

bounced a hefty baby on her knee. "He's a foster child, you see. His mother didn't want him and so they let me take him."

"We're good for each other, this baby and I." I asked Mrs. Baker how she finally made her peace with charity.

Everything else in the picture on the preceding page is made of cellulose. For that matter, so is this newspaper! And so are some 6,000 other products — products so useful it's unlikely that you spend a day of your life without using several of them. • How long, then, will the supply last? As long as the world lasts! Cellulose comes from trees, and Rayonier Canada can produce over 400 million pounds of it a year. And since we manage British Columbia forest lands scientifically, we grow more cellulose than we harvest. So don't worry about shortages! Use all the cellulose you like — in cellophane, plastics, rayon, acetate, photo film, sausage casings and all the rest. We can go on producing it forever!

Mooney Takes Double Papers

Ald. Millard Mooney, whose term on city council ends this year, yesterday obtained nomination forms for both the mayoralty and aldermanic elections.

In a statement to city council last week, Ald. Mooney made it plain he will take part in the Dec. 14 elections but he has consistently refused to say which race—mayorality or aldermanic.

He refused again last night. Meanwhile, four persons have submitted their nomination papers to city hall, making their candidature official. Former mayor Percy

George, a member of the Public Utilities Commission, signed the nomination papers of R. B. Wilson, one of three men who have announced they will seek the mayoralty.

Other nomination papers entered are for George Taylor, 1931 Richardson, who is contesting the aldermanic election, and two men who are seeking seats on the Greater Victoria school board—incumbent David Logan, 2666 Capital Heights, and newcomer John Warren Porteous, 165 Joseph Street, whose papers were signed by retiring trustee Kenneth Leeming.

Would Oak Bay Accept Reeve From Victoria?

To help Victoria voters choose among the three men contesting the mayoralty election Dec. 14, the Colonist asked them for their views on nine pertinent subjects. This is the first article.

By TED SHACKLEFORD

Mayorality candidate J. Donald Smith poses the question: "What would the people of Oak Bay think if a city resident went out there and ran for reeve?"

He used the question to emphasize his contention that members of city council should be residents of the city. Mr. Smith is the only city resident to date who is seeking the mayoralty.

"When you have members of council coming in from other municipalities, passing bylaws which they themselves don't have to live, it is defeating the purpose of local municipal government," he said.

"People who live in the Gorge-Burnside area are certainly more anxious to correct the smoke problem than someone living outside the city."

Mr. Smith's call for home rule came when he was listing problems facing the city.

NEUTRAL PRESS

"Our biggest problem in Victoria today is the lack of a neutral press. Our local press gave very bad advice to the homeowners on the multi-million-dollar parking mall on View Street in 1958, but the homeowners wisely rejected their advice."

BAD ADVICE

"They subsequently gave... downtown business property owners similar bad advice on the $1,000,000 parking facilities, and now these people want to get out of their predicament."

"And now our local press is giving the voters equally bad

J. DONALD SMITH

advice for Dec. 14. I am sure the voters are going to reject that too."

Mr. Smith's views on other questions:

Voting facilities. Multiple.

Amalgamation. Metropolitan government by legislation, one municipality and protection against transfer of debt.

City Hall. I favor a new city hall when the people decide it is time to move on the issue. We don't know yet what the people want—they haven't been given the opportunity to say.

Auditorium. Yes, if it could be financed without increasing home-owners' tax bills.

Secret Meetings. No.

Downtown Pensioners' Centre. Yes, a civic centre such as I have suggested would include that but it should be large enough to include all our citizens.

Bus System. I am unalterably opposed to our home-owners being saddled with any debt with respect to the bus system.

Capital Financing. I favor the pay-as-we-go plan with a review of this policy from time to time.

Mr. Smith, at present representing Victoria as a Social Credit member of the legislature, has also served as an alderman.

ALDERMAN TWICE

He was elected to city council in 1951 and resigned in 1953 to contest the mayoralty election. Defeated, he was re-elected as an alderman in 1954 and served until 1957.

Elected to the legislature in 1956, he served both as an alderman and MLA for 18 months.

TWO DAUGHTERS

Mr. Smith, 42, is married and has two daughters, Wendy, 8, and Sherry, 6.

CLAIMS CREDIT

Mr. Smith claims credit for instituting Victoria's business tax "which brought in an additional $1,000,000 in revenue—a direct saving to the home-owners on their taxes."

Hit-Run Car Dims Lights In Oak Bay

Lights went out in several homes near the Windsor-Transit corner in Oak Bay last night after a hit-run accident.

Police said a car, eastbound on Windsor, was apparently going too fast to make a left turn at Transit and hit a power pole near the footpath entrance to Windsor Park about 9:20 p.m.

The pole was not damaged but B.C. Electric crews found loose connections resulting from the blow. The car left the scene.

By BOB PETHICK

A gasoline price war is about to erupt in Victoria. First battle is expected within the coming week with the opening at Burnside and Alpha of Vancouver Island's first bulk sales gasoline station.

R. A. Vandekerckhove, operator of a chain of stations in the Vancouver area and now completing construction of the Victoria station, said last night he will sell gasoline three cents below the general price level here.

TWO CENTS

Several other service station operators in the Greater Victoria area are making plans to stay within two cents of the cut price.

City service station operators pointed out the bulk sales outlet is limited to cash alone, with no credit card service or garage facilities.

42 CENTS

Mr. Vandekerckhove told the Colonist last night his price on regular gasoline would be 42 cents a gallon, with premium gasoline selling at 47 cents.

City gasoline prices are now 44.6 cents for regular and 49.6 for premium.

DEALERS PAID

An oil company official in Vancouver said regular gasoline was selling at 38.9 cents a gallon by the oil companies as a support measure due to a price war in Vancouver.

Gasoline for the new service station here will be purchased in Bellingham, Wash., and trucked to Victoria by way of Nanaimo.

Who'll Take a Dog To a Lonely Man?

Wanted—someone to transport a small black dog to a lonely man on Salt Spring Island.

Of all the requests for pets received during the year by the SPCA, the most touching arrived yesterday.

H. G. Buchanan, of Cusheon Lake Road, Salt Spring, wrote that he lived alone in a shack surrounded by hills, bush and evergreens, an ideal place for a dog.

"I have no friends or relatives," he said. "I could afford a transfer and dog tag by Dec. 23."

SPCA officials were quick to pick out a dog "that looks like a spaniel," and decided to add a collar for the little animal.

"In this case there will be no charge for the dog," said SPCA manager Norman Stephens.

The one problem remaining is transportation to Salt Spring Island. Anyone wishing to help is asked to contact Mr. Stephens at EV 3-0514.

Mrs. Juanita Clark, 38, of 303 Admirals, who suffered head injuries and bruises and abrasions to her hands and knees, has shown "great improvement" at St. Joseph's Hospital.

She is conscious part of the time and has spoken a few words, a hospital spokesman said last night.

Three Traffic Victims Escape with Bruises

Two women and a girl escaped with bruises and abrasions in two traffic accidents yesterday afternoon.

Treated and released from Royal Jubilee Hospital were Mrs. Marion Hamilton, 83, of 4575 Bonnie View Place, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Winnifred Hamilton, 41, of the same address.

Both were in a car driven by the younger Mrs. Hamilton which struck a power pole at Stadacona and Fort.

Ell Ann Gronmyr, 14, of 425 Hector, escaped with bruises in an accident on Interurban Road.

Saanich police said William George Norris, 135 Burnside West, swung right to avoid cyclists and knocked the Gronmyr girl into a ditch. Mr. Norris drove the girl home.

'Dear,' the Lady Said And That's What It Was

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

OUR LADY AT FULFORD: From time to time, as regular readers may recall, we print in their entirety items sent in by the Colonist's Fulford correspondent, Miss Bea Hamilton.

We rescued another one of her timeless accounts the other day, a piece entitled "Oh, Dear—Surprise!" Here it is, just as she wrote it.

"FULFORD — Mrs. Don Layard of Rainbow Road, Ganges, B.C., had a great surprise recently. Hearing a noise outside the door, she called out, 'Is that you dear?' and she opened the door.

"It was all right—a four-legged deer—and Tammy, the pet deer from the Campbell's of Beaver Point district, graciously accepted the invitation of the open door and walked in. Perfectly at home in a house, Tammy finished half a pie, stole some bread, and nibbled on a waxed gourd. Then she climbed into a spare bed for a nap.

"Highly entertained for two hours or so, Mrs. Layard phoned an SOS to the Campbells and Mrs. Campbell and her daughter Joan, who is over on a visit from Vancouver, started out to get the truant.

En route they met Allen Best, curator of the Stanley Park zoo, also over at his parents' for a visit. So the three arrived at the Layards, a good eight miles from Beaver Point, and only with her favorite candy could Mrs. Campbell entice Tammy into the van to take her home.

"It just goes to show one never knows what is going to walk into your home on an island!"

ONCE BITTEN: An enterprising Vancouver firm has apparently been using the birth notices in the Victoria newspapers to compile a mailing list.

The firm's product—birth control literature.

ITEMIZED ACCOUNT: The confusing battle of words over B.C.'s confused power picture reached the point of absurdity yesterday when we had Opposition leader Robert Strachan blasting the remarks made by Attorney-General Robert Bonner who had been commenting on a speech by federal Justice Minister Davie Fulton...

Freedom rider-folk singer Guy Carrawan, who has been packing them in at $400 a week at the Vancouver coffee house The Inquisition, came over to Nanaimo the other day and performed for the locals for expenses only. Incidentally, John Balema, brother of the owner of the Vancouver coffee house, will open a similar establishment in Nanaimo...

Most people have heard the story of the man who hired a private detective, then, not sure he would do the job, hired another to watch the first and a third to watch the second. Well, on Cook Street, there are three automatic traffic counters within 100 feet.

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED: Since Jack and Vera Holland started out making those miniature cluster light standards as a novel souvenir of Victoria some months ago they've had orders from dozens of lands stretching from Ireland to New Zealand.

Some more enterprising city motorists have even had the cluster standards mounted on the front of their cars.

But what happened when a miniature was taken into a tourist establishment for approval?

"What is it?" said the tourist man. His eyes followed an outstretched arm, pointing out the window at a genuine cluster light standard on the sidewalk.

"Oh, one of them," he said, suddenly catching on.

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE: Someone has given me a card containing "quick facts" about beer and the brewing industry. Seems eight out of 10 adult Canadians drink beer for an average annual consumption of 13 gallons a head—which is less than half the amount they drink in Belgium.

Bennett Robin Hood?

Premier Bennett has been thinking of himself as B.C.'s Robin Hood ever since he fired a blazing arrow at the Kelowna bond-burning ceremony, a meeting of B.C. Power Corp. shareholders was told here last night.

Victoria lawyer H. L. Matthews, executive member of the shareholders' committee for fair expropriation terms, told an audience of more than 100 in the Orange Hall, 725 Courtney:

HURTING A LOT

"The premier's next step was to take over the B.C. Electric for the people. But he apparently forgot he was hurting a lot of little people who hold shares in the parent B.C. Power Corp."

Mr. Matthews urged every shareholder to press government MLAs for a single change in the takeover legislation which would give the courts "absolute right" to set compensation.

MORE RIGHTS

He added: "In the very early days, the king could do no wrong. But in those days they had a remedy. If they didn't like what he did they got rid of the king. Heads rolled like eggs."

USING HEADS

"I'm not advocating anything like that here... but it's true our MLAs started using their heads."

One unidentified shareholder said from the floor that B.C. Power Corp. should take a leaf from trade union books and organize some political action.

PRESENT CASE

He suggested the 8,500 shareholders in B.C. march on the legislative buildings in Victoria to present their case.

INTERIM RETURN

Shareholders will meet in Vancouver, Dec. 8, to ratify an interim return of capital amounting to $18.70 per share.

When legal complications have been ironed out, shareholders should collect at least $38 per share, possibly more.

Christmas Trees Decorate Streets

First of 154 Christmas trees were installed on downtown streets yesterday as part of seasonal decorations.

The $5,000 program is sponsored by Victoria Chamber of Commerce and the costs are met by merchants in the area.

By next week all trees will be installed and lit with strings of white lights.

Some 60 trees were used in a pilot program last year and proved so popular that the scheme was extended.

Island Indians Mourn Chief, Wife

By JOHN SHAW
Colonist Staff Writer

TOFINO — Chief Francis Frank and his wife Rachel, Indians of Opishat, three miles from this west coast settlement, died within a few hours of each other Tuesday morning.

Cause of death, according to Dr. H. R. McDermid of Tofino, the only doctor in this area of 3,000 souls extending from Tahsis to Ucluelet, was "botulinus" poison.

They had eaten a concoction of salmon roe, fermented, something of a delicacy among the coast Indians, and it apparently was bad. A sample has been sent to Vancouver for analysis.

RCMP Cpl. William Steen, who arrived Wednesday from Ucluelet to investigate, had no comment on the tragedy which has shocked the Indian community.

A third poison victim, Mrs. Nellie Frank, daughter-in-law of the dead couple, was saved when an anti-toxin was rushed in from Vancouver by air and road.

"The anti-toxin was the only available supply west of Toronto," Dr. McDermid said. It was brought in by highway department car over the rough 35-mile road from Alberni to Tofino.

Father Thomas Lebsinger, who has been three years with the Opishat people and who conducted the mass for the chief and his wife in the weatherbeaten shingle church in the Indian settlement, said: "Chief Frank was a highly respected member of this community of 300. They make a sort of cheese out of the fermented salmon eggs, and I suppose in some way it was contaminated. It's a bit of a mystery that they should have died of it. I suppose they reached the hospital too late."

Alec and Joseph Frank, sons of the dead chief, discovered the elderly couple stricken in their home Sunday. There is no positive information as to what date they ate the poisoned food.

They brought them to Tofino in their fishboat, Native Princess, Monday afternoon.

Wednesday afternoon Indians came from as far away as Ahousat, 15 miles to the north, to attend the mass and burial in the rain-drenched little cemetery just outside Opishat village.

The Franks are a large family, and there were a score of weeping and lamenting relatives among the 200 persons who crowded the church and stood bareheaded by the grave.

Earlier, the sons of the chief and a half-dozen friends had come to Tofino Hospital for the bodies. They were carried to the Native Princess on stretchers, wrapped in white linen and taken across an inlet to the village. The villagers met the boat and followed in sad procession.

Colonist photographer Ted Harris and I reached Opishat by open boat, through a fierce rain squall and choppy sea.

We followed the funeral procession from the church to the cemetery in the weeping cedar woods. While Father Thomas sprinkled holy water and went through the moving ritual of prayer, Indian men and women wept openly—it was a touching scene.

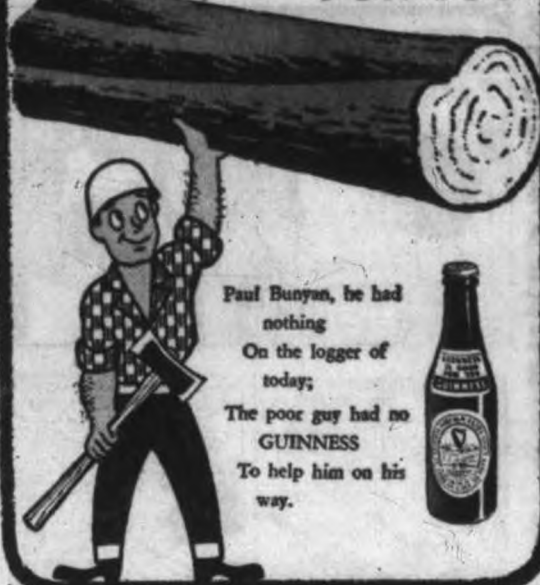

The smoke was still rising from the bonfire the Indians had made of the chief's and his wife's belongings when we left the village.

Three Areas Vote On School Scheme

LAKE COWICHAN—People in the village and the Lake Cowichan school district will vote on a $466,000 school building referendum Dec. 7. Polling stations will be here and at Honeymoon Bay and Youbou.

The bylaw will enable the school district to implement Chant report recommendations, a school board official explained. Plans include a three-room school at Lake Cowichan, a two-room school at Youbou and additions to existing schools.

Citizens Told

Financial State Good in Alberni

ALBERNI — Alberni's financial situation is good and, even if the voters give their consent to the $600,000 sewer construction bylaw, the city will still have a borrowing power of $450,000, Ald. C. M. Blair told the annual stewardship meeting Tuesday.

Only major expenditure of 1961, he said, was the $54,000 for the Kitsilano Creek bridge project. Of this amount $3,500 had come from a land sale trust account.

He said the city had $60,000 invested in B.C. toll and other provincial government bonds. Ald. Blair said he was confident the city would end the year within its budget.

Peterson Creed:

Teachers First Buildings Next

DUNCAN—B.C.'s education department and school boards do not think in terms of fine buildings and tax dollars, Education Minister Leslie Peterson said Tuesday after a whirlwind tour in which he officially opened eight Cowichan district schools.

He told an audience in Cowichan Senior Secondary School auditorium "a school system without a staff of able teachers is rather comparable to a vacuum."

HIGHLY QUALIFIED

"The measure of success is in the excellence of instruction," he said. "This province has the most highly qualified teaching force in Canada."

Comment came as he disclosed B.C. has guaranteed and sold more than $50,000,000 in bonds for school construction during the past two years. Outlining some Chant report recommendations which will become law, Mr. Peterson said: "September of this year marks the beginning of a transitional period in the B.C. educational system."

"The recommendations that will be implemented (then and) in subsequent years will involve a considerable re-adjustment of our past educational philosophy and practices."

Courtenay Over Top

COURTENAY—United Appeal's $25,000 target has been exceeded by $392.98.

This is the first time since the United Appeal started here several years ago the drive has gone over the top and some returns are still to come in.

Salt Spring Voters Still 'Split'

FULFORD—Residents of the south end of Salt Spring Island have voted against an amalgamation proposal which would have allowed them to vote for all of the island's school trustees instead of just one.

South end spokesman Capt. L. B. D. Drummond told the annual meeting of Gulf Islands School District 64 that "we feel we can select a trustee who is conversant with the problems of our area and can put forward the wishes of the electors."

The meeting re-elected A. D. Dane to the board for a two-year term. He received 27 of 89 votes.

Secretary Mrs. J. Sturdy disclosed the board operated on a $228,722 budget during the past fiscal year.

Courtenay Farmers Want Piped Water

COURTENAY — Residents of the Minto farming community will start a petition to ask the government for aid in getting a piped water supply as an alternative to condemned wells now in use.

Recently the health unit condemned a good number of wells in the area, and the government was asked to make a survey of the area for a possible piped water supply.

An engineer's report just issued says a water system would be too costly to be practical.

Residents say that, because of the contamination of well water, the government should consider the situation an emergency and take steps to provide a supply.

Fuel Company Fined Again

DUNCAN—A Victoria firm, Ideal Fuel Co., was convicted for the third time on a charge of operating an overloaded truck and was fined $200 in police court. Previous offences took place in March and April.

VICTORY FOR ALL OVER COLUMBIA?

Stage Set By Fulton

By TERRY HAMMOND

Justice Minister Davie Fulton has set the stage for a B.C.-Ottawa Columbia River pact which could bring about an early start on the $458,000,000 project.

Speech Angers Udall

WASHINGTON (CP)—U.S. Interior Secretary Stewart Udall was reported yesterday to be infuriated by a blunt attack launched Tuesday by Canadian Justice Minister Davie Fulton in a Columbia River power speech.

Udall conferred yesterday with U.S. Ambassador to Canada Livingston Merchant who it was indicated, may be trying to head off a Canada-U.S. storm on the Columbia controversy.

'DRIVE ABETTED'

Mr. Fulton inferred in his speech that Udall was abetting a B.C. propaganda drive to obtain Ottawa approval for sale of Columbia power to the U.S. It appeared likely Ambassador Merchant may have advised Udall against any sharp retort to Fulton and there was some indication Merchant, who later returned to Ottawa, may explore the possibility of bringing Udall and Fulton together.

In Victoria last night Attorney General Robert Bonner said "we have just witnessed another sad chapter in Ottawa's ability to give meaningful offence to others."

'INSULT TO U.S.'

"The low state of Canada's reputation in the United Kingdom, achieved over seven years of bombing, has now been equalled overnight in Washington through Mr. Fulton's capacity to needlessly insult a responsible member of the U.S. government."

Misunderstanding By Fulton Charged

By PETER BRUTON

Federal Justice Minister Davie Fulton has demonstrated a complete lack of understanding of Columbia River development problems, B.C. Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston charged yesterday.

"It is a tragedy for the Canadian policy to be enacted on a complete misunderstanding," said Mr. Williston, commenting on a speech by Mr. Fulton at Prince George Tuesday.

'NOT RECOGNIZED'

The provincial minister said Mr. Fulton's attack on B.C.'s plan to sell Columbia power in the U.S. showed no recognition of the practical difficulties of carrying out the terms of the treaty.

There was no market in the U.S. for short-term "dump" power but there was a profitable, long-range market which would allow the financing of the entire project, said Mr. Williston.

Mr. Fulton knew full well that the sale of surplus downstream benefits was provided

The major question, therefore, was the size of the surplus and this had been answered by a subsequent provincial study.

NEED EMPHASIZED

Mr. Williston said B.C. had emphasized the need to sell the downstream benefits during the treaty talks, by letters after the talks, and that the need for complete understanding before ratification was also made clear.

"Now, after all this discussion and understanding, there is an indication we have attempted to change the treaty or to change the understanding we had," said Mr. Williston. "Nothing could be further from the truth."

VALERIAN ZORIN

Angry Zorin Marches From Dinner

NEW YORK (UPI)—Valerian Zorin, Soviet ambassador to the United Nations, last night stalked from a dinner honoring U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, angered over remarks made in a speech by Vice-President Lyndon Johnson.

Zorin later told a reporter: "If the host does not respect the guest, then the guest cannot respect such a host."

Johnson was in the midst of a speech in which he took the Communists to task, pointing out that American successes around the world have far surpassed those of the Communists.

Johnson had been speaking about five minutes and had reached a point where he described the successes of democracy in Japan, Greece and Turkey.

Bolt of Lightning Hurls Man 30 Feet

TOFINO—A 50-year-old mechanic was hurled 30 feet by a lightning bolt last night as one of the worst storms in recent years lashed the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Oliver Sherdall of Tofino was left dazed and shaken after lightning knocked a transformer off a power pole 100 yards away and dashed him to the ground a split second later.

The toll of storm damage in the Tofino-Veljelet area was still mounting at press time today.

'Brand Cigaretts as Menace'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Four doctors, all former smokers, said here public agencies should declare cigarettes a health menace.

The doctors appeared before a District of Columbia Medical Society meeting. They agreed there was no longer any room for doubt about statistical and clinical findings linking cigarette smoking with lung cancer and certain forms of circulatory disease.

Dr. Michael Shlimkin, cancer specialist of the National Institutes of Health, said:

"Were we speaking of spinach, the selling of spinach would now be a capital offence."

Shlimkin said cigarettes should be regarded as a major "environmental poison," adding:

"Cigarette advertising equates smoking cigarettes with bravery, sexual virility and social status, and in view of this campaign it is little wonder that so many youngsters smoke. We must change this picture. We have an obligation to our children."

Diefenbaker Claims Credit For Common Market Pledge

Key Paragraph Cited

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker last night defined the Conservative government's relations with the United Kingdom.

"The Conservative party," he said, "stands for co-operation with Britain without subservience."

"It stands for a strong Commonwealth in which consultation will take place on matters of Commonwealth interest, in which there will be full regard by each of the nations for the effect of its policies on the other members."

The prime minister's statement climaxed a review of the current London-Ottawa difficulties over Britain's proposal to join the European Common Market.

Diefenbaker claimed credit for the representations which he had made concerning the interests of Canada and other Commonwealth nations. He said he had been responsible for the paragraph in the now published Heath report on negotiations which declared that:

"Britain has told the six Common Market countries that it will not join them if it means grave loss or ruin for some of its Commonwealth partners. Britain made it clear that the terms of entry must include special arrangements to insure the continued agricultural exports of Canada, New Zealand and Australia."

"Some 76 per cent of our exports to the United Kingdom would be affected by Common Market tariffs," Diefenbaker said.

Durum and other wheat and flour exports, which now enjoy free entry, ultimately would face a duty of 20 per cent.

Daily Colonist Obtains 'Secret' Heath Report

The Colonist has obtained a copy of the new famous speech made to Common Market members by Britain's Lord Privy Seal, Edward Heath. This was the speech Canada wanted in detail and was refused. After the speech was leaked to the United States, the British government released it to all Commonwealth governments.

The relevant text of this important and far-reaching speech appears today on Page 5.

That 'Split' with U.K. Didn't Exist—Minister

SASKATOON (CP)—A Canada would have no right to interfere in a decision by Britain over United Kingdom membership in the European Common Market never has existed, Alvin Hamilton, federal agriculture minister, said Wednesday.

Mr. Hamilton, replying to questions following his address to students at the University of Saskatchewan, said:

UN Driver Found Shot in Back, Major Missing

ELISABETHVILLE (Reuters)—The body of an Indian United Nations driver who was shot in the back was discovered here Wednesday in the wake of the beating up Tuesday night of two UN officials by troops of secessionist Katanga province.

George Ivan Smith of Australia, acting UN chief here, sent a protest note to Katanga leaders after the body was found by a Swedish UN patrol wrapped in a Katanga army sheet near President Moise Tshombe's home.

Smith said the driver was "shot in the back at fairly close range."

UN patrols meanwhile searched for an Indian major, Arjeet Singh, who was being driven by the slain soldier. Both Singh and the jeep he was travelling in were missing.

THE PRIME MINISTER

Mrs. Baker's Battle Becomes Epic

By TED PULFORD

Buried among the chronicles of human misery in the city's welfare office is a case file which begins with this entry:

"Baker, Mrs. C. V. Husband collapsed and died at work. She has seven children and expects another. There is no money in the bank, no insurance and the house is not paid for. She has applied for social assistance."

I listened to this intense little woman's story last night

as she helped get the younger children ready for bed.

It was evident that I was listening to a heroine.

The wound inflicted by the tragedy is still raw. When she mentions her husband, her eyes waver for an instant and she seems almost to forget what she intends to say.

Her family's war against the physical and mental erosion of want has been a minor epic in the neighborhood. Though her face shows the lines of a thousand pinched budgets, her youngsters reflect a security which any family might envy.

In some mysterious way, the little woman and her house full of brawling, happy youngsters has converted poverty into great wealth and the loss of her husband has become the catalyst drawing her family together.

As she spoke, Mrs. Baker

bounced a hefty baby on her knee. "He's a foster child, you know. His mother didn't want him and so they let me take him."

"We're good for each other, this baby and I."

I asked Mrs. Baker how she finally made her peace with charity.
